Only 16 Killed.
Coolidge on Swelled Heads.
Hurting Hoover's Hand.
Only Peons.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

ASSISTANT SECRETARY LOWMAN, of the Treasury Department, says prohibition agents and coast guards have killed 16 persons in 15 months.

That would not be bad if prohibition were really enforced. Sixteen or 16,000 lives would be cheap, in exchange for nation-wide temperance.

BUT Police Commissioner Whalen's statements that New York, which before prohibition had eight or ten thousand saloons, now has 32,000 SPEAKEASIES, makes you wonder whether our kind of enforcement is worth what it costs. The 16 killed do not include those killed by state enforcement agents, the lady in Illinois, for instance, killed in her house after state agents had broken in.

CALVIN COOLIDGE in an article headed "Why I Did Not Choose to Run," in Hearst's International Cosmopolitan Magazine for May, just published, says no president should have more than eight years in the White House.

"No human being of any note," says Mr. Coolidge, "can stand for eight years the constant adulation with which a president is surrounded without getting a swelled head."

That depends on the man. Mr. Coolidge did not get a swelled head in his eight years. Other presidents have gotten, and will get, swelled heads in less than eight days.

PRESIDENT HOOVER'S hand is sore after shaking hands with 1,757 fellow citizens in one day.

WHY SHAKE HANDS? Especially when your fellow citizen, pushing a plow professionally, shows his appreciation with a grip developed by holding the furrow straight among stones.

IN FRANCE, important men meeting embrace each other. We don't do that. Why shake hands? Why not invent something else? Rubbing noses, Indian-fashion, would not do; too many germs. Why not simply look the row of 1,757 proud Americans straight in the eyes, and say, "How do you do?"

MEXICAN national troops shot to death hundreds of rebels penned in railroad cars, bridges burned. You are not to imagine rows of proud Castilians laid out dead, their fine Spanish faces turned to the sky.

Ninety-nine per cent of those killed are miserable Indian peons, fighting because they were told to, not knowing why.

They are not so different from many that looked up at the sky in the recent European war.

THE Federal Reserve would limit speculation by pressure on banks, discouraging loans for speculating.

A good idea. Gambling is bad.

BUT since the Reserve has no such influence, why doesn't it tell the Reserve banks not to practice usury, instead of charging interest rates of which a pawnbroker would be ashamed?

SENATOR BORAH, head of the Senate Committee on Foreign Affairs, would again demand this country recognize the Russian government. Many European countries have recognized that government.

Is there any reason why Uncle Sam shouldn't recognize a government that has been stable and progressive ever since the war?

The real reason for not recognizing Russia is the fact that foolish Wall Street boy bankers bought bonds from the Czar when he was toppling, and others from comic Kerensky. They think Russia should pay those bonds. Russia won't.

THE Sherman act may not allow oil companies to limit oil output by agreement, for the sake of a great national asset and their own pockets.

BUT Secretary Wilbur, chosen by President Hoover to run the Department of the Interior, has his own sufficient method of curbing oil waste. He has cancelled 1,223 oil drilling permits and 1,250 holders of other grants on public land are ordered to show cause why their permits should not be annulled. Mr. Wilbur will prevent draining all the oil out of government lands, and there is comfort in that for oil stock owners.

IN THE Bible, sins of the fathers are visited upon the children unto the third and fourth generation.

In modern life, the sins of children are often visited upon the fathers.

YESTERDAY Nathan F. Leopold, father of a notorious young murderer, died. He has been in seclusion since his son's horrible crime, and was the last alive of three unfortunate fathers. The father of Loeb died recently, unquestionably of grief, and Jacob Franks, father of the murdered boy, is also dead.

IT IS important that the two young murderers be kept in prison until they die. Fortunes left them by their fathers should not be used to buy them out of jail. The risk of letting such creatures breed their kind would be too great.

LELAND ROSS

KIN OF SKIPPER LOST AT SEA 'UNSATISFIED'

PHILADELPHIA, April 6.—(INS.)—Freed of the charges and mystery growing out of the discovery of his storm-swept yacht Nomad off the Cape May, N. J., coast, Leland H. Ross, wealthy New York owner of the vessel, planned to resume his interrupted voyage today to New York.

He is not through with the sea. He loves it. It is his life, he said.

With the yacht overhauled, additional crew members employed and a new captain to take the place of Capt. John D. Schofield, who was washed overboard, the Nomad will again skirt the South Jersey coastline en route north.

Meanwhile relatives of the dead sea captain intimated they would confer with the U. S. District Attorney today regarding the fate of the skipper. "We're not satisfied," Seville Schofield, brother of the dead captain said.

The mystery and furore surrounding the Nomad was blown away like a pall of smoke before a high wind when Ross was charged with and acquitted of illegal transportation of liquor and an attempt to smuggle, at a hearing before U. S. Commissioner J. H. Patterson.

Meningitis Closes Fisher Body Plant

PONTIAC, Mich., April 6.—(INS.)—Virtually all departments of the Fisher Body plant were closed today and will remain idle for 10 days, as a precaution against the spread of spinal meningitis. The company employs between 4,000 and 5,000 persons. The orders came from company officials after several cases of meningitis had broken out among workmen. Each department in which an employe had become ill of the disease was ordered closed. Several deaths of meningitis have been reported at the Oakland County Isolation Hospital.

Schumann-Heink Has Great-Grandson

NEW YORK, April 6.—(AP.)—A telegram from Mme. Schumann-Heink at Coronado Beach, Cal., yesterday announced the birth of her first great-grandchild. The baby, a boy, was born to Ferdinand Hirzy and Mrs. Iine Hirzy, Mme. Schumann-Heink's stand-daughter, at Stevens Point, Wis. He has been named Ferdinand Hirzy, Jr.

Mme. Schumann-Heink, who is 68, has six children living and 11 grandchildren.

Poison Causes Man's Death in Hospital

Poison swallowed, police say, in an attempt to end his life, caused the death early today in the South Side Hospital, of John Dalbo, 36, of 419 Independence street. According to a police report, Dalbo was removed to the hospital on March 28, after having swallowed poison in his home. No reason for his actions was known by relatives.

CAR RIDERS SAVED IN PANIC

A cool-headed trolley crew and Lieut. David Corbett, of the homicide squad, protected a score or more of panicky passengers from death or injury when an overhead trolley wire snapped at Tenth street and Penn avenue today and whirled about in the street for several minutes.

The wire flashed artificial lightning as it struck the steel parts of the car.

Several passengers, including women, rushed for the exits, but Corbett, who happened to be on the car, and the crew guarded the doors and kept the passengers inside until the wire stilled. Contact with it probably would have meant death.

Traffic was rerouted for 10 minutes until the wire was repaired. It was a Sixty-second-Butler street car.

4 IN DETENTION HOME ESCAPE

Police today were notified that three girls and a boy had escaped from the detention rooms of Juvenile Court in Fifth avenue, Oakland.

The girls, according to the report furnished police, went to the kitchen last night, with permission, for a glass of water. They escaped through the kitchen door, down a short fire escape.

SEVENTH IN WEEK

These latest escapes bring the total for the week to seven. On Tuesday, three boys escaped.

The kitchen door was unlocked, as are the other doors of the home, because the building is not fireproof and city authorities have ruled against locking.

The girls, 14 or 15 years old, had been sent to the home for minor delinquencies. The boy, 14, was housed in the male quarters adjoining the girls' home. His escape was

Constance Morrow Flies From Mexico

MEXICO CITY, April 6.—(AP.)—Miss Constance Morrow, who has been visiting her parents, Ambassador and Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, over the Easter holidays, left this morning aboard a regular passenger mail plane for Brownsville, Tex. She was returning to Milton Academy, Milton, Mass.

Mrs. Morrow, Col. Charles Lindbergh and Anne and Elizabeth Morrow, all went to Valbuena flying field in an embassy motor car to see her off. It was announced that Miss Constance would continue the journey from Brownsville by train.

Arnstein Cleared, But Held as Fugitive

NEW YORK, April 6.—(AP.)—A New England hotel owner who said he was swindled out of $32,000 and for whom New York police yesterday arrested three men, looked on Nickey Arnstein yesterday and failed to identify him and a pal, but did identify a third man. The three were held for examination today.

Arnstein and Field were cleared of the swindling charge, but later Magistrate Vitale ordered him held without bail for examination today as a suspected fugitive from justice.

TORNADOES KILL 9 IN 3 STATES

MINNEAPOLIS, April 6.—(AP.)—Spring storms of tornadic violence whipped through parts of Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa yesterday, killing nine persons. Three others were missing early today and were believed dead. More than 100 men, women and children were in hospitals, and some of them were so severely hurt that they may not live.

The property damage can hardly be accurately estimated, so wide was the storm's path and so incomplete were reports from the several storm centers, but it was certain to run into the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

DAMAGE HEAVY

In North Minneapolis alone the damage was fixed at $100,000, while the storm's wake in country sections was strewn with wrecked farm buildings.

The most destructive of the storms formed over Lake Minnetonka, a summer resort near Minneapolis. It struck with increased velocity on the north side of the city, wrecking many homes, damaging communication lines and uprooting trees. It tore its way through two Minnesota counties and three in Wisconsin before it blew itself out.

DEATH RIDES STORM

In this city, where the population is heaviest, only one man, Andrew Hanson, was killed. George Lundgren was killed at Forest Lake when his house collapsed, and at Taylor Falls, 30 miles to the North and East, C. F. Bryan, a farmer, was crushed to death. Then the storm lifted to strike again at Rice Lake and Reeves, Wis., where four were killed. Mrs. Louis Reed and Miss Martha Raawe, sisters, were crushed to death near Rice Lake and near Reeves the two children of Mr. and

Raiders Crash Brick Wall, Seize Brewery

DETROIT, April 6.—(AP.)—Federal prohibition agents yesterday smashed their way into the second large brewery raided here in the last 24 hours. Following discovery of a 500-barrel-a-day brewery under an apartment house Thursday, the agents continued their search for "alley beer" manufacturing plants and discovered one yesterday in a basement on Detroit's East Side. The plant was in full operation when the raiders reached a heavy steel door after smashing through a false brick wall. Two men found in the place were arrested. The agents said they believed other men fled through a 150-foot escape tunnel to a nearby house.

U. S. SOLDIERS, MEXICANS FIGHT NEAR BOMB NESTS

AMERICAN TROOPER SHOT

NACO, Ariz., April 6.—(AP.)—American and Mexican soldiers clashed in battle here today, climaxing a night of violence along the international border, during which the Southern Pacific Railroad line to the East was found strewn with bombs.

The clash between the Mexicans and Americans occurred at a Southern Pacific Railroad tunnel eight miles east of here. Border patrolmen of Troop E, Tenth United States Cavalry, reported that they were fired upon from the Mexican side of the line as they approached a cache of bombs.

AMERICAN WOUNDED

Mexican soldiers, the Americans said, moved up from their side of the line and opened fire. One American private, whose name was not given, was shot through the chest. The Americans said they opened fire then and the Mexicans fled.

American soldiers said there were 75 bombs, contained in 15 sacks, along the railroad tracks. Whether these were to be used to blow up an American train believed to be bringing Mexican Federal soldiers to reinforce the Naco loyal garrison, or whether the explosives had been cached there to be smuggled across the border to the rebels, was not determined by the American officers.

NACO BATTLE RESUMED

While the Americans and Mexicans were exchanging shots, the rebel army of Gen. Fausto Topete hurled itself in force against the Naco (Sonora) loyal garrison, defended by 1,200 troops under Gen. Lucas Gonzalez. Two airplanes, tanks and cavalry bore down on the federal entrenchments shortly after daylight and there was a heavy exchange of fire.

Developments came fast, beginning with a terrific explosion in Naco, Sonora, at 3 a. m. Immediately preceding this, both Naco towns were plunged into total darkness. Main electric lines were found to have been cut on the American

HOOVER BANS DRY GUNPLAY

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Strict enforcement of prohibition—but no rough stuff.

That somewhat slangily describes the prohibition enforcement policy of the Hoover administration, as outlined today in the most authoritative quarter.

Melodramatic gunplay by federal agents, unnecessary violence and rough-house tactics in conducting raids without legal sanction will not be tolerated. Orders to this effect have been issued and sent trickling down throughout the personnel of the federal enforcement machine.

HOOVER HEARS OF AURORA

President Hoover wants no Aurora incidents involving federal agents. The deplorable circumstances surrounding the killing of Mrs. Lilliam DeKing before the eyes of her small son in Aurora have been brought to the President's attention, and while no comment was forthcoming because it is viewed as a state matter, it can be said that federal agents will be

Congressman Martin Dies in Hospital

WASHINGTON, April 6.—(AP.)—Representative Whitmell P. Martin, 62, Democrat, of Louisiana, died here early today at Garfield Hospital.

Mr. Martin underwent an operation late yesterday. About to begin his eighth term in the House, the Representative was a member of the Ways and Means Committee and had played a leading part in tariff revision deliberations. He was particularly active in consideration of the tariff levy on sugar, one of the principal products of his home state. His home was at Thibodaux, near New Orleans.

Stillman Sails, Wife To Join Him Abroad

NEW YORK, April 6.—(AP.)—James A. Stillman, retired New York banker, sailed on the Olympic this morning to play golf in England and Scotland. He said he would be joined later by Mrs. Stillman, who was detained at Grand Anse, Quebec, supervising repairs to their hunting lodge, damaged by fire three weeks ago.

Braddock Man Hurt By Car at Crossing

Wisconsin to Ask Repeal of Dry Statutes

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 6.—(AP.)—State Senator Ben Gettelman, Milwaukee, announced today he will introduce a resolution in the Legislature requesting Congress to call a constitutional convention for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

He said that if Wisconsin joins the 22 states that have already petitioned Congress for a constitutional convention, the vote of nine more states will be needed to bring about the first convention of this kind in the history of the country.

Senator Gettelman explained that the requests of the other 22 states date back over a long period of years, but it is not necessary that the purpose of the convention be stated or that the requests be made within a limited number of years.

4 DIE, 12 HURT IN HOTEL FIRE

DES MOINES, Ia., April 6.—(AP.)—At least four persons are dead and scores are suffering from injuries, burns and cuts received in a fire, which broke out at the Kirkwood Hotel shortly after 3 o'clock this morning.

Fire Chief Burnett after inspecting the wreckage expressed the belief that several additional bodies might be found. He said a group of men and women had been reported holding a party in one of the rooms, and had not been found since. Firemen were almost unanimous in believing that more victims were buried in the debris.

The known dead: Mrs. Ted Watson, "Red" Jarrup and two unidentified men.

Twelve persons were taken to hospitals and many others injured and burned were given first aid. Between 125 and 150 persons were in the building when the fire broke out.

Four men jumped from the fifth (top) floor to the top of the court, which served as the roof of the first floor. Three of them are believed to be dead.

The building, which is a total loss, was valued at between $200,000 and $250,000. It was constructed before the Civil War, and was one of Des Moines' oldest hotels.

1,000 ON LINER FAST IN MUD

NEW YORK, April 6.—(INS.)—With more than 1,000 passengers aboard, the liner Paris, one of the finest ships in trans-Atlantic service, went aground during a fog today aand stuck for hours in the mud of Owl's Head flats off the shore of Brooklyn. The ship was outward bound for Europe.

There was no panic, or any undue excitement, although the passengers were awakened from their sleep by the roaring of the liner's whistle and the sudden clanging of bells, which were sounded to warn other craft from "side swiping" her in the fog.

Tugs went to the assistance of the stranded ship and, shortly before noon, 16 of them were straining and puffing about the vessel in an effort to dislodge her from the mud. Meanwhile, oil was being pumped out of the Paris to lighten its weight.

Indications were that the liner would not be refloated until 3:30 this afternoon when the tide rises again.

At the local office of the French Line it was announced that there were no Pittsburghers on the Paris although there were a number of bookings from Youngstown and Erie.

Bomb Wrecks Coach Of Speeding Train

TEMPLE, Texas, April 6.—(AP.)—A passenger coach of a southbound Sante Fe train was wrecked about 15 miles north of here early today by a mysterious explosion. None of the 15 passengers in the car was seriously injured.

Officers, after questioning passengers, advanced the theory the explosion was caused by a bomb but were at a loss to explain the presence of explosives on the train. Other coaches were not damaged. Passengers were terrified.

BORDER RAIDS INCENSE U. S.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—(AP.)—War and State Department officials were incensed today over reports of the shooting of an American cavalryman, and the firing on American troops by Mexicans from across the international border today.

Energetic measures to curb the activities of the rebel forces which endanger the lives and property of Americans on the United States side of the line are expected to be promptly taken by the military authorities in charge of the situation in Arizona.

Secretaries Stimson and Good have decided that the time has come to put a stop to the indiscriminate endangering of Americans, and instructions have been sent to Maj. Gen. Lassiter at San Antonio to take steps at once to impress the rebel leaders in Sonora that the United States will not tolerate recurrence of the incident.

STOKOWSKI "VERY RUDE," VIOLINIST QUITS IN HUFF

PHILADELPHIA, April 6.—(AP.)—Mischa Mischakoff, first violin and concert master, and David Dubinsky, orchestra manager and leader of the second violin division, have resigned from the Philadelphia Orchestra, it was learned today. Friction with Dr. Leopold Stokowski, director, was given by Mischakoff as his reason for leaving.

"Dr. Stokowski has been exceedingly rude to me on two occasions before the entire membership of the orchestra," said Mischakoff, "and I don't propose to have anyone speak to me in such a manner. I can't understand why he has been so rude unless it is because I asked the organization for an increase in salary."

Mischakoff is internationally known, having been at one time concert master of the Moscow opera house in Russia, and for two seasons concert master of the New York Symphony Orchestra.

LOW SEAT FOR MRS. GANN AT DINNER, CRISIS LOOMS

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Mrs. Edward Everett Gann goes to the foot of the table.

The crisis in the great society war that is raging in the capital over ranking Mrs. Gann, Vice President Curtis' sister and his official hostess, below the wives of diplomats, comes April 11, when Carlos Davila, ambassador from Chile, will give a formal linner for 200 guests at the Pan-American Union.

And unless Secretary Stimson reverses the ruling of former Secretary Kellogg in the meantime, Mrs. Gann will be seated further down than the envoys' wives.

Davila said he would be obliged to abide by the present ruling and ignore the protest that Curtis has registered. He is averse to offending the Vice President, but pointed out that decisions from the State Department were equivalent to official requests to the diplomatic corps.

Members of the other foreign missions are breathing sighs of relief that they did not commit themselves to entertainments before the question of precedence arose.

The question of Mr. Gann has been a perplexing one to hostesses who have entertained in honor of the vice president since inauguration. He is entitled to no official social rank.

LAWRENCE COUNTY BACKS DRIVE FOR INCOME TAX CUT

5-DAY WEEK SOUGHT ON RAILROADS

CLEVELAND, O., April 6.—(AP.)—A program to "reduce unemployment in the transportation industry" and including a six-hour day and a minimum five-day week for railroad employes was adopted yesterday by the Railroad Labor Executives' Association.

"The general program to stabilize employment of railroad workers" was agreed on at the close of a three-day session of the association, made up of 31 executives of railroad brotherhoods who represent employes of nearly every road.

D. B. Robertson, chairman of the association, and president of the Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, said that 350,000 railroad men have been thrown out of work in the last nine years, which was the period of greatest prosperity in the industry. The six-hour day and five-day week were advocated in order to provide employment for more men.

FEWER MEN AT WORK

Robertson said more traffic has been handled by fewer men so that despite some wage increases, operating expenses per traffic unit declined from 49 cents per gross ton in 1923, to 42.7 cents in 1927.

A series of proposed amendments to the railway labor act to provide for "enforcing the right of railway employes to bargain collectively with the railroads through their own choice" also was adopted. These amendments will be brought to the attention of Congress and a strenuous campaign for their enaction initiated, Robertson said.

Another important result of the session was the drafting of a program of legislation to "protect the interests of the railroad employes in railroad conservation legislation, covering preservation of the employes' rights under the railway labor act and covering compensations for losses of employment or removal of homes caused by consolidations."

In drafting this, Robertson said the association "was mindful of the interest of the general public in protection against unreasonable rates, which might result after the consolidation of competitive roads."

ASK 8-HOUR MAXIMUM

Other provisions adopted were:

Not less than one day rest in seven for all classes of railroad workers.

Actual establishment of the maximum eight-hour day in all cases, including amendment of present hours of service law.

Gradual shortening of the work day or work week, without loss of compensation, to aid in maintaining employment and income of workers.

Establishment by agreement with each railroad of a minimum force for each class of employes, to be guaranteed a minimum annual employment for the year.

Relief of employes from undue burdens caused by economy, efficiency or consolidation of railroads.

Acceptance of the principle of "preventive overtime" rates of pay—that is, higher rates to be paid for overtime to discourage overworking minimum number of employes instead of employing a maximum at straight time rates.

FINK CASE JURY DISAGREES

After 20 hours' deliberation, a jury reported today that it was unable to agree on a verdict in the case of Harry Fink, private detective and aide of Alderman John J. Verona, tried on a morality charge. The jury, 10 men and two women, was discharged.

The jury found a verdict of guilty against Stella Jones, Negro woman, of Stevenson street, co-defendant with Fink, charged with keeping a disorderly house.

Fink was charged with inducing Betty Milton to enter the Jones woman's house after he obtained her release from the workhouse by paying her $25 fine.

MAY IMPEACH LONG TODAY

BATON ROUGE, La., April 6.—(AP.)—Gov. Huey P. Long, who for months has ridden the sea of stormy politics, will know before the end of the day whether he is to be brought before an impeachment court.

By unanimous agreement, the Louisiana House of Representatives will vote before 8 o'clock tonight on charges in the impeachment resolution that run from swearing to a plot to have a state representative murdered.

This agreement was reached to check a reported maneuver contemplated by the Governor of either seeking a court injunction or calling out the state militia to dissolve the Legislature if it attempts to sit beyond midnight tonight, the time limit he fixed in his call for the special session at which he hoped to have a taxation program adopted.

OFFICERS FACE KNIFE IN RAID

Brandishing a butcher knife, Jane Wilbert, 30, Negro, threatened to stab four county detectives today, they reported, when they raided the home of her brother, Joseph Frye, 6500 Frankstown avenue, alleged lottery headquarters.

Detective James McGinley took the knife from the woman. She, Frye, and the latter's mother, Mrs. Louise Frye, were arrested. The women were charged with disorderly conduct at the Frankstown Avenue Police Station. Detectives said a charge of conducting a lottery would be made against Frye. Tickets and a small sum of money were confiscated, the detectives reported.

LAWRENCE OIL CASE JURORS WARNED

Judge Harry H. Rowand, in excusing the jurors hearing David L. Lawrence's suit against E. N. Gillespie for an accounting of $80,500 put up by Lawrence and his friends in the Guffey-Gillespie oil "pool" deal, told them to cause the arrest of anyone who approached them to discuss the case.

The judge also informed the jurors that they should not discuss the case with anyone, and if any person attempted to do so to report the matter to the court.

Most of yesterday afternoon was given over to testimony of auditors. It was revealed that $1,209,908 was spent for Guffey-Gillespie Oil Company stock bought in 1920, and later for the pool, on which $994,296 was paid. The syndicate had to close it out at a loss, according to Gillespie's testimony, because the market price of the stock dropped.

STORM IN WEST FATAL TO 9

Mrs. Richard Pittman died when their home was demolished. A farmer, John Soloman, was killed at Clayton, Wis.

George Tuin, a Little Rock, Iowa), farmer, was the sole fatality reported in Iowa, being killed when his chicken house collapsed during a heavy windstorm.

SEVERAL MISSING

Three persons were reported missing in the Rice Lake district. They were Mr. and Mrs. Basil Traischoms and Marie Buchrow.

The storm developed late in the afternoon. With but little warning it broke over Minneapolis, and in a half hour the northern section of the city was strewn with wreckage. From that point the tornado worked northeast dipping and rising.

Perhaps the most severe blow was struck at Rice Lake and vicinity, where more than 20 farm homes were wrecked. There the wind was accompanied by heavy rain and huge hail stones, which smashed windows.

Mrs. Freed, living on a farm some distance from Rice Lake, called her family of small children into the cellar. Then the wind struck the house, it was ripped from the foundation and the woman was killed by rocks which fell from the basement wall.

HUNDREDS INJURED

At Fridley, Minn., a short distance north of here, Radio Station WRHM was badly damaged.

The number of persons injured here can only be estimated. More than 70 were treated at hospitals, and scores of others at their homes. At Rice Lake, Wis., 20 were so seriously injured they were placed in the hospital there and 16 were being cared for at a hospital at Barron, Wis.

Hastings and Beatrice were among the Nebraska cities reporting damage from high winds. At Omaha there was a 32-degree drop in temperature in eight hours from the record breaking 90's into which the mercury had risen. Snowfall was predicted for parts of that state today.

18 Cottages at Erie Destroyed by Fire

ERIE, Pa., April 6.—(AP.)—Eighteen cottages seven miles west of Erie were destroyed by fire of undetermined origin early today, causing a loss of $40,000. The flames, fanned by a stiff breeze from the lake, caused the fire to spread rapidly. Erie firemen fought for four hours before they brought the fire under control. Some of the destroyed cottages had been damaged by a storm several days ago. Explosions in the flaming houses forced firemen to remain at a distance.

HOOVER SEES ARMS CUT BAR

WASHINGTON, April 6.—(AP.)—The greatest obstacle to limitation of armaments in the opinion of President Hoover is the difficulty of reaching an agreement evaluating the fighting strength of war vessels and the dividing of navies into specific categories.

If the coming session of the League of Nations preparatory commission on disarmament should evolve some method of attacking this problem, the President feels that in itself would be substantial progress.

Mr. Hoover believes that there is a mistaken idea generally as to the scope and purpose of the Geneva gathering. As he sees it, it is intended to pave the way for a general conference on disarmament by a thorough-going study of technical problems. The Chief Executive regards the conference as having no bearing upon any conference which may be held here upon the expiration in 1931 of the Washington naval treaty.

The disarmament problem, the President feels, is not a question of tonnage, but rather of determining the categories of actual fighting strength, so that lines may be provided upon which a limiting agreement can be reached.

NO RUM, THUGS TAKE CASH

Whisky thieves were foiled early today in an attempt to cart off liquor from Second avenue pharmacy, 4300 Second avenue, Hazelwood. Breaking into the whisky cupboard, the thieves discovered the cupboard empty. The store owners had used the last of their supply yesterday.

Using a ladder belonging to painters working on a nearby dwelling, the thieves gained access to a side window of the establishment. Police noticed the ladder leaning against the window shortly before six o'clock today.

A checkup inside the store revealed that the thieves, disappointed in their search for liquor, had taken $15 from the cash register, destroyed a peanut vending machine and removed $3 and had also stolen cigarets and candy valued at $12.

MICHAEL CRUISE

MISSING FLIERS REPORTED SAFE

PERTH, N. S. W., April 6.—(AP.)—Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith and his three companions of the Southern Cross were believed today to be down southeast of Thurburn Bluff, Western Australia. A government launch with a government searching party was sent for them. The information was conveyed in a telegram this morning to Philip Collier, premier of Western Australia, from Col. Mansbridge, resident magistrate at Broome, far West Australian Coast.

Thurburn Point, or Bluff, is a promontory on the Timor Sea, just north of the entrance to the Cambridge Gulf, Western Australia, about 70 miles north and west of Wyndham, the goal of the four fliers when they set out last Saturday, just a week ago.

It was their intention then to fly to Wyndham as the first lap of a flight to England which they hoped would break the record of Bert Hinkler, made by flights in the reverse direction. They left Sydney last Saturday and Sunday radioed they were making a forced landing in a rainstorm, "about a hundred miles east of Wyndham." The gravest anxiety was felt for their lives, inasmuch as the country into which they disappeared is known for its savage, inhospitable tribes.

Weather Conditions.

The disturbance that was centered over Wyoming yesterday morning is now centered over Western Ontario, north of Minnesota, and another center developed during last night over Western Colorado. These disturbances have produced only light rains generally, but in some localities heavy downpours occurred. High pressure continues over the Southeast and northward along the Atlantic coast.

High temperatures continue from the central rising eastward, but over the far West and Northwest the weather is cold. Temperatures from 8 to 14 in Montana and from 32 to 34 in North Dakota.

River Conditions.

The upper Allegheny River has about reached its crest stage, and appears to be falling at some points. The Monongahela is still rising slowly from No. 10 down. The Ohio is rising slowly. Stage at Franklin is 8.3 feet; Lock No. 7, 16.4; Pittsburgh, 20.4; Dam No. 2, 13.7; Dam No. 6, 13.6; Dam No. 9, 21.1; and Dam No. 12, 17.5. At Beaver Falls, on the Beaver River, the stage is 12.0 feet, rising slowly, or one foot above flood stage.

HOOVER FAVORS CUT IN EARNED INCOME TAX

WASHINGTON, April 6.—President Hoover favors a tax reduction on earned incomes when revenues shall warrant, and feels that the next cut should apply to this class of taxpayers, it has been authoritatively learned.

At the same time, it was learned that the President is of the opinion that the whole system of taxation should be changed, and the law rewritten and made more equitable so that unearned incomes should bear a greater part of the tax burden than at present.

YEAR DELAY LIKELY

However, President Hoover's opposition to a further slashing of federal taxes before the government's "budget is balanced," backed by a like sentiment among congressional leaders, makes any chance of tax reduction legislation unlikely for another year at least, and probably for two years.

Following the President's wishes, administration leaders will oppose enactment of tax reduction legislation at the coming special session and undoubtedly at the succeeding regular long session. This would postpone tax relief until the short session, beginning in December, 1930.

DEFICIT FEARED

Although a $100,000,000 surplus will rest in the treasury at the end of the current fiscal year, administration leaders continue to fear a government deficit. Administration spokesmen pointed out that $80,000,000 of the surplus came from taxes upon the increased profits of Wall street speculators. They likewise dread the ever growing total of government appropriations, the cost of flood control and the expected federal outlay for farm relief.

It was made plain that the President feels that under the present system an injustice is being done those who pay taxes on their earned incomes, and that in each salary scale some provision should be made for savings and other expenses looking to the future and the amount of the exempt earned income should be increased.

The boy escaped during the recreation hour in the playground adjoining the home. Once before, when he left the home, he was brought back by another inmate.

OUSTER BILL VETOED

HARRISBURG, April 6.—(AP.)—The Rhodes bill providing for the appointment of a new board of managers in charge of the House of Detention for untried juvenile offenders in Allegheny County, was vetoed by Gov. John S. Fisher yesterday.

The Governor declared it would be a "step backward" to rip out the present board and to deprive it of authority to regulate houses of detention.

"Certain highly important provisions of the act of 1901," he said, "would not be supplied by the Rhodes bill, the most important of which is that which permits delinquent, dependent and neglected children to be lodged in the House of Detention by a probation officer without a formal court commitment.

'WELL MANAGED'

"I am advised that the Allegheny detention home is being well managed, although it does seem proper that the county commissioners should be vested with authority in budgeting and regulating expenditures. I feel, however, that it would be a step backward to strip the board of managers of the authority vested in it by the act of 1901, which is repealed by this bill insofar as it affects Allegheny County, and especially to rip out the present incumbents."

U. S.-MEXICAN TROOPS FIGHT

side, four blocks from the international lines.

BLAST ROCKS TOWNS

The explosion rocked the two towns, shaking residents out of their beds and breaking windows. Citizens believed it heralded the long expected major attack on the federal garrison by rebel troops immediately to the south. Big searchlights, which had been flashing out from the garrison, were useless. It looked like a rebel raid was coming. The international line was closed and newspapermen were refused permission to cross.

Later it was said a locomotive just outside the federal trenches had been blown up. Whether this was the work of rebels or the premature explosion of a defense mine or from some other cause, remained undetermined. The Federals are said to have planted many mines around the garrison.

TROOP MOVEMENT

Whether the tangled situation arising out of the movement of Mexican federals across American soil had a direct bearing on the border upheaval had not yet been determined by the Americans.

The Mexican troop movement began last night with the departure of a westbound train from El Paso, Tex., bearing 295 Mexican federal soldiers who had been interned there after the battle of Juarez last month.

Advices that the soldiers would be moved across Arizona soil caused Gov. John C. Phillips, of Arizona, to protest to the State Department at Washington. Last night Gov. Phillips declared he had received assurance from Washington that "Arizona's sovereignty would be respected in the matter."

TROOPS GO TO NACO

TUCSON, Ariz., April 6.—(AP.)—The Southern Pacific Railroad train carrying 295 Mexican Federal soldiers, a number of women and children, and some horses, from El Paso, Tex., left Mescal, Ariz., at 7:20 o'clock this morning and was due in Naco, Ariz., at 9:20 a. m. (Mountain Time), the Southern Pacific dispatcher at Mescal reported.

TROOPER HURT IN CRASH

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., April 6.—J. M. Burnsworth, 24, a member of the State Highway Patrol, was reported in critical condition in the Citizens General Hospital today, his skull fractured when his motorcycle and an auto collided at the intersection of the Freeport and Russelton roads last night.

The auto driver, Michael Sramko, of Unity, was at liberty on $500 bail, charged with aggravated assault and battery.

Sergt. S. T. Crum, of the highway patrol, reported that Burnsworth was chasing a motorist on the Freeport road when Sramko's car, appearing from the Russelton road, struck the motorcycle, hurling it against a second car which dragged the partolman and his machine 60 feet.

Hurt in Car Crash, Sues for $10,000

WASHINGTON, Pa., April 6.—Charles E. Stunkard, of Hickory, has started a suit for $10,000 damages against the Pittsburgh Railways Company as a result of injuries suffered in a head-on collision between cars of the company near the Mt. Washington tunnel, Pittsburgh, August 10.

MERCHANTS, FARMERS AID PLEA

NEW CASTLE, Pa., April 6.—Citizens of Lawrence county and the entire region of the Shenango and Mahoning valleys are backing the movement for reducing the tax on earned incomes. Among farmers and business men, as well as the workers in the industrial districts, the people are outspoken in their demands for more equitable rates for all wage earners.

Mayor William H. Gillespie, of New Castle, a prominent lumberman and a director of the Lawrence Savings and Trust Company, believes that exemptions under the existing income tax law require changing. He said:

"I heartily favor any step toward increasing exemptions allowed at the present time. Any man dependent for his income on professional fees or a salary and who is raising a family knows that the exemptions allowed for rearing the average child is insufficient, if we are to maintain the American standard and give our sons and daughters an adequate education."

COUNCILMAN FOR CUT

D. O. Davies, well know resident here, who is serving his second term in city council, commended the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph movement for the downward revision of taxes on professional men and women and all workers.

"The poorer people are after all the greatest sufferers from an unfair levy of income tax," said Mr. Davies. "With the present cost of living it is not unusual for wage earners' families to find themselves in debt at the end of the year and still have income tax to pay. In cases of sickness or accident or other extraordinary losses, the householder cannot charge off this expense and indeed, the income tax often is a tax on misfortune."

ENCOURAGES HOME BUILDERS

"The effort to obtain a reduction of the tax on earned incomes is a movement in the right direction," said John G. Nothdurf, secretary of the Dollar Savings Association. "Lower taxes on the incomes of all professional people, salaried workers and wage earners will encourage home building and the creation of new capital which properly can be taxed without inflicting a burden on the taxpayer."

Many residents of New Castle, and those of other towns in Lawrence County have signed individual petitions, which have been forwarded to the Sun-Telegraph. These signers represent perosns in every walk of life. All urge prompt action by Congress in granting relief.

HOOVER STOPS DRY GUNPLAY

severely punished if they resort to similar tactics.

Federal agents are under orders to use firearms only in defense of their lives. While obviously there will be some violation of these instructions, it is the purpose and the policy of the new administration to weed out of the service those agents who are too quick on the trigger.

25 DIE IN 15 MONTHS

Official Treasury records show that 190 persons have been killed in shooting affrays between citizens and enforcement agents since the Eighteenth Amendment became effective. Of this number, 25 have been killed in the last 15 months.

This list, large as it is, admittedly is not complete. Officials admit there is no way of telling how many killings may be directly attributed to prohibition enforcement. All save a few of the states have their own enforcement machines and state killings—such as that of Mrs. DeKing at Aurora, Ill.—are not listed in federal records. Police killings are not included, either. The Treasury figures concern only cases where federal agents have been involved.

President Hoover views this steadily growing list of deaths with some concern. In common with other administration officials, he sees in such incidents as the Aurora affair prohibition being brought into disrepute. He "wishes prohibition to succeed," as he informed Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, in the pre-convention campaign, and he considers one certain way of not helping it to succeed is to have federal agents themselves setting an example of lawlessness and violence.

SQUIRREL TERRORIST DIES MINUS TRIAL; JUDGE ANGRY

CHICAGO, April 6.—(AP.)—The little red squirrel that bit seven persons and thus became what the police termed a red menace, has been executed.

Judge Herbert Immenhausen, of Town Hall Police Court, the only official who took any formal action in the case of the people vs. one little red squirrel, believes there has been a grievous miscarriage of justice. The only document Judge Immenhausen issued was a warrant charging the squirrel with mayhem and providing for his release under $5,000 bond. Such a warrant, he said, did not authorize officers to execute the squirrel before he had been tried.

Patrolman Oscar Hansen fired the shot that ended the great Addison street squirrel hunt. He defended his action by pointing out that the rodent had bitten seven persons this week and thereby became a menace to society.

The squirrel created a dispute between the city health department and the city attorney's office, the former holding its only duty lay in safeguarding the welfare of those bitten by the squirrel, the latter contending that it was a public duty to shoot crazy squirrels on sight.

As Judge Immenhausen pointed out, however, the sanity of this particular squirrel has never been legally determined.

HOOVER ON TRIP TO PICK SITE FOR FISHING CAMP

WASHINGTON, April 6.—(INS.)—President Hoover left the capital early this morning for an all-day visit to the Rapidan River area in Shenandoah National Park, where he hopes to do some fishing later in the season.

Today's trip was mainly for the purpose of selecting a camp site and making plans for future excursions, although rods and reels were taken along.

A picnic lunch was carried for members of the party, which included Mrs. Hoover, Secretary of the Interior Wilbur; Mark Requa, California oil magnate; Capt. Wilson Brown, the White House naval aide, and Maj. Long, of the Marine Corps, who will have supervision of the construction of the summer fishing camp. It is the President's intention to construct a small bungalow or shack in the area for his use later on.

The trip was made in three White House automobiles. Two hours of easy driving will put the presidential party in the heart of the park.

SATURDAY, APRIL 6, 1929

FLOOD CAUSES HEAVY LOSS IN OHIO

YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 6.—A check-up of the havoc wrought by the flood here yesterday shows that the property damage in Youngstown alone will exceed $100,000. This figure will be increased considerably when figures from other towns in this district are available.

The flood came upon the district suddenly as the result of a cloudburst early Friday morning. The Mahoning River, rising 8.5 feet in 10 hours, and Crab creek, in the industrial district, rapidly swelling over its banks, sent water into many plants along the streams, forcing suspensions, and into the basements of downtown business establishments where heavy loss to stored material resulted.

Many families were trapped in their homes in the low-lying districts by the rapidly swelling streams and these were rescued by firemen and policemen. Trains were delayed by washouts and flooded tracks and trolley service was paralyzed in some parts of the city.

Other towns in this district also suffered. In Sharon, Pa., the Shenango River was sent over its banks, causing heavy loss. Bridges were reported damaged at some points. New Castle, Pa., Niles, O., and other towns also were affected by the flood.

Slate Fall Kills Miner

WAYNESBURG, Pa., April 6.—Patrick Smith, 53, employed at the Rainey coal mine at Chartiers Southern, near Clarksville, Greene County, was killed yesterday by a fall of slate.

Acquittals Feared, U. S. Dodges Use Of Jones Law

LOS ANGELES, April 6.—(INS.)—Why no liquor case has yet been tried in Southern California under the harsh Jones law, now more than a month old, was revealed today at the Federal prohibition enforcement bureau here.

The government does not want to risk a reversal, acquittal or a hung jury. And it wants the offender to get something "near the limit." So the dry agents of the Southern California district are patiently awaiting the time when they have a case which would arouse no public sympathy before prosecuting under the drastic "five and ten" Jones law.

Federal enforcement officials admitted receiving a letter from Mrs. Mable Walker Willebrandt, spokesman apparently for the national headquarters, telling them to proceed "with great caution" in invoking the new law.

BILL BOOSTING FEES OF J. P'S SIGNED

HARRISBURG, April 6.—Among the 34 bills signed yesterday by Gov. Fisher was the Goehring bill, increasing the fees which aldermen and justices of the peace in Pennsylvania may charge. The Governor vetoed an identical bill in 1927, but he explained that he was guided this time by the splendid support given the bill in the Legislature.

The Governor approved the Marcus bill, which permits appointment of real estate deputies to take charge of sheriff sales in counties of the first three classes. The salary in Allegheny County would be $6,000.

The Governor also approve the Rhodes bill, which fixes the salary of the Allegheny County Court crier at $2,800. He vetoed 18 bills a majority of them were repealers to remove obsolete statutes from the books but the Governor found that the laws had been repealed by earlier enactments.

Court Refuses Key To Erie "Padlock"

A petition of F. J. Welch, proprietor of a drug store at 12 West Thirteenth street, Erie, to amend the year "padlock" injunction against the store, because of sub-station No. 1 of the Erie postoffice being located in the store, was denied yesterday by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker.

The injunction decree was handed down by the court on March 18, because of alleged violations of the prohibition law. The druggist asked permission to open under $1,000 bond because the sub-station of the postoffice, which he said was a great convenience to the public.

WISCONSIN CONGRESSMAN HOLDS VOTE DRY DEBACLE

By JOHN C. SCHAFER,
Member of Congress from Wisconsin.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—With the referendum vote in Wisconsin practically complete, the tabulation is indicative that the voters of Wisconsin are definitely opposed to the existing prohibition laws.

Those in favor of prohibition bent every effort to defeat the repeal of the state enforcement act.

The Wisconsin vote is another confirmation of the failure of prohibition, astonishing proof of which comes every day in the day's tragic news.

HEARST COMMENDED

William Randolph Hearst is to be commended for the work which he and his papers are doing in an endeavor to cure the existing evils caused by the prohibition laws.

The Wisconsin state Legislature should carry out the mandate of the people and repeal the state enforcement law. The vote of the people of Wisconsin strengthens the hand of the members of Congress from that state who have been fighting for years to modify the prohibition regime in the interest of true temperance.

The recent referendum confirms my statement on the floor of the House that the election of Herbert Hoover, particularly from the Wisconsin standpoint, was not a dry victory.

DANGER TO U. S. SEEN

Hoover was elected because of his outstanding record of public achievement, ability and position on great political and economic problems, such as the protective Republican tariff and the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence seaway.

After 10 years of prohibition, the Wisconsin people feel that the prohibition laws have not aided the cause of temperance, but have increased the intemperate use of alcoholic beverages, caused a general wave of law violation, leading to the disrespect for all laws, which condition is dangerous to the perpetuity of our free government.

Greensburg Woman Dies as Car Upsets

GREENSBURG, Pa., April 6.—Mrs. Susan Daugherty, 52, of Greensburg, was killed last night in an automobile accident on the Greensburg-West Newton road, two miles from here. She was returning from Elizabeth with her daughter and another young woman when a passing machine locked fenders with the Daugherty car, causing it to overturn. The two younger women were not seriously injured. The driver of the machine did not stop.

The check was mailed back with only the explanation that by majority vote chest officials had decided not to accept it.

SEEK DRY TEST IN CALIFORNIA

SACRAMENTO, Cal., April 6.—(INS.)—With the purpose of forcing a referendum vote of the people, Assemblyman James L. Quigley, anti-prohibition legislator, yesterday introduced a bill writing the drastic Federal Jones-Stalker law into the Wright act, California's dry enforcement law.

Dry leaders had decided not to attempt to write the Federal law into the state act. Assemblyman T. M. Wright, dry leader, said he would support the Quigley bill, however.

"I favor neither the Volstead act nor the Wright act," said Quigley, "but I propose to amend the new Jones law into the Wright act, if possible, so that the whole question can be brought before the people of California for a popular verdict."

If the referendum of the Quigley act is successful, the anti-prohibitionists claim it will carry the present Wright act down with it, while Wright claims that the present enforcement laws will not be affected.

Auto Injuries Fatal To Carnegie Man

LIED TO GUARD SMUGGLERS, GIRL ADMITS

NEW YORK, April 6.—(AP.)—A 20-year-old girl who was arrested as a member of an international diamond smuggling ring, testified in Federal Court yesterday that she had lied during a police grilling to protect her brother, her father and a policeman who is accused of helping the family beat the customs on importation of gems.

The witness was Miss Frances Landau, indicted with her brother, Sidney, and her father, Morris, a New York jeweler. Her father is said to have been the brains of a clique that used John T. McIntyre, a waterfront policeman as a go-between with foreign shippers and domestic receivers. She testified as a government witness against McIntyre who went to trial alone after four members of the ring pleaded guilty and against whom the government rested its case late yesterday.

ADMITS LYING

After Berend Groothus, European purchasing agent for the ring who received immunity for coming to America for the trial, had identified from the witness stand Morris Landau as the guiding spirit of the enterprise, Miss Landau testified that she had answered falsely a number of questions concerning McIntyre put to her during the police grilling.

She said she had visited the waterfront in June, 1927, with Barnet Shapiro, Glouscester, Mass., merchant, whom Groothuis identified as one of the backers of the smuggling scheme, and had received from McIntyre a package which she later turned over to her father. On different occasions the girl said she had given Mrs. McIntyre two watches and a diamond ring.

STEWARDS TESTIFY

The government completed its case against McIntyre after two trans-Atlantic liner stewards had sworn that they had brought packages of diamonds from Europe and and handed them to the policeman and had been given $100 on each occasion.

Capt. Lewis J. Valentine testified that nowhere in his interrogation at police headquarters had McIntyre admitted any connection with the ring. A customs' agent gave the same testimony.

Nephews to Share $2,000,000 for $1,000 Loan

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., April 6.—(AP.)—Fifteen years ago two nephews of Peter Brill, wealthy Ukiah, Cal., lumberman, lent him $500 each. Today one of the nephews, Peter J. Smith, a painter here, was informed that he would share equally in Brill's $2,000,000 estate with John Glennon, the other nephew, believed to be in New York.

The painter, who is unmarried, told of the loan today. He said his uncle declared all of his other relatives had turned him down.

"You boys will never regret this," Smith quoted Brill as saying. The uncle, having amassed a fortune, died March 3.

PILOT OF DEATH CAR KNOWN

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., April 6.—(AP.)—Identification of the driver of an automobile from which the shot that killed former Deputy Sheriff Joe Haywood was fired, has been made. All but five of the original suspects arrested in connection with the killing in Jacksonville's rum war have been released while the sheriff has announced he believes the murderers, in addition to the driver of the car is being held.

Tom Holland, alleged bootlegger, was named by Frances McGhin as the man who drove his machine alongside of Haywood's car Tuesday night when the latter stopped to allow a train to pass and from which the fatal shot was fired. The woman accompanied Haywood. She is being held by Sheriff W. B. Cahoon as a material witness.

W. A. Hallowes, Jr., attorney for Dan Hysler, reputed leader of the Duval County rum ring, made strenuous denial that a price had been placed on Haywood's or Sheriff Cahoon's heads.

The attorney told newspapermen that "if Haywood hadn't been a meddler and a hijacker he never would have been killed."

Cruelty Charged, Wife Asks Divorce

Genevieve Layton, 5324 Ellsworth avenue, married to Albert Layton, November 7, 1925, and separated from him January 1 following, or less than two months after their marriage, has filed a libel in divorce in Common Pleas Court. She alleges cruel and barbarous treatment.

Pauline Heller, 185 Forty-second street, wants a divorce from Leo Heller, alleging desertion. The couple were married January 13, 1927. Heller leaving her, it is alleged, April 27, the same year.

STATE LEAVES DE KING CASE TO COUNTY

GENEVA, Ill., April 6.—(INS.)—The involved situation surrounding the killing of Mrs. Lillian De King in a day raid on her Aurora home became only more complicated today following the refusal of Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom to relieve state's Attorney George Carbary as prosecutor of the grand jury investigation.

Carbary, who had petitioned for intervention by the Attorney General on the grounds that he (Carbary) was prejudiced in favor of the raiders, today announced he would go ahead with the investigation.

In this capacity it will become his duty to go before the Kane County grand jury and seek indictments against Deputy Sheriff Roy Smith, who was ordered held for manslaughter by a coroner's jury, and Eugene Boyd Fairchild, the dry informer, under arrest on a perjury charge growing out of the false affidavit on which the De King raid was based.

Attorneys for the De King family are expected to protest against Carbary as prosecutor of the men he has sought to defend.

In declining to intervene in the stormy Kane County case, Attorney General Carlstrom sharply assailed Carbary in a letter to Circuit Judge John J. Newhall, before whom Carbary petitioned for Carlstrom's intervention. The attorney general wrote:

"It is the duty of the state's attorney under his oath to prosecute all violations of law. Weather a violation be committed by an official or a private citizen pregents no distinction and the duly elected state's attorney of Kane County should without hesitancy perform his duty. That obligation in contemplation of law rests upon every state's attorney."

The production is under the direction of Mrs. Virginia Yeamans, of the faculty. M'KEES ROCKS WOMAN WINS AWARD FOR THRIFT

Thrift continues to bring reward to readers of the Sun-Telegraph. Miss Lottie Nieman, of 208 Copeland street, McKees Rocks, has been awarded $10 by this newspaper in recognition of her thrift. Miss Nieman has savings account No. 16,118 in the McKees Rocks Trust Company, which was started for her by her mother when she was a little girl. She said she would let the thrift gift remain in the bank to draw interest.

To show what compound interest will do for one, Miss Alta Albinger, of 404 Carlisle street, North Side, recipient of another $10 thrift award, mentioned that her account, No. 9,450 in the Allegheny Trust Company, had lain dormant for 17 years, but although the sum on deposit at the beginning of that period was comparatively modest it earned during that time $61 in interest.

H. F. Van Ryn, of 7122½ Felicia way, Homewood, has received $10 as holder of passbook No. 10 in the Hamilton State Bank. He has had a savings account there since the opening of the bank on May 24, 1924.

T. G. Cruse, of 90 Schley avenue, Ingram, has received $10. He has Marine account No. 2,961 in the Third National Bank.

Mrs. Helen Pogacnik, of 730 Maple street, Bridgeville, has also received $10. Her bankbook is No. 4,965 in the Bridgeville Trust Company.

PHYSICIANS HERE DISCUSS NEW HEART DISEASE CURE

Election of officers is the principal business before delegates to the American Therapeutic Society today at their closing sessions of a two-day convention in the Roosevelt Hotel. The annual banquet tonight will be the last event on the program.

New treatment of heart diseases is an important subject of several papers read during the sessions, the treatment being known as intravenous injection by dextrose solutions.

Among prominent specialists speaking before today's sessions were Dr. J. Lawn Thompson, of Washington, D. C.; Dr. Martin J. Vorhaus and Dr. Jerome A. Marks, both of New York City; Dr. Seymour DeWitt Ludlum, of Philadelphia; Dr. Richard J. Behan, of Pittsburgh, and Dr. Harvey Beck, of Baltimore.

Dr. E. Bosworth McCready, of Pittsburgh, national president, is presiding at all business sessions, while other local officers are Dr. Clement R. Jones, of the committee on admissions, and Dr. J. I. Johnston, council member.

Reflections of Stage and Screen and Their Artistic People

JETTA GOUDAL, SCREEN LADY OF MYSTERY, MAY QUIT MOTION PICTURES

By DOROTHY HERZOG.

HOLLYWOOD, April 6.

LA GOUDAL—JETTA GOUDAL—contemplates leaving motion pictures. So I am told. Jetta will leave them—if she so decides—with the same completeness and mystery with which she entered. From anywhere came La Goudal. Her life is her own. Her temperament may be the public's. No more. She has kept faith with her secrets. Recently, an interviewer endeavored to penetrate the shadows of her past with an abrupt: "May I be so rude as to ask where you came from?" And Jetta, her lips twisted in half smile, her eyes veiled, leaned forward with:

"When I was told you were coming of your own accord to see me, I did not ask from where or for why."

The subject was closed. Jetta Goudal won her case against the Cecil DeMille-Pathe organization. She sued for $90,000 salary due her. She was awarded $30,000. It is closed. She believes she has made her warring gesture in behalf of the acting profession: namely, to fight for an honest deal if it is not forthcoming. Some call it stupid. Others, brave. Opinions intrigue but do not influence La Goudal. She achieves dignity and criticism.

Jetta Goudal

La Goudal First Known on Stage

IT is the fate of mystery and strength unmotivated by advice and helplessness. Be this helplessness simulated or real. If Jetta Goudal departs Hollywood and pictures, she will disappear. She may return whence she came. It may be to Paris. That Jetta came from Europe may be established. Some eight years ago she arrived in New York to join her finance, Jacque Van Der Kley. The engagement was broken off. Shortly after, the name Goudal became known first to the stage, then to Pictures.

Whoever she is, La Goudal is a personage. She possesses culture and poise. She may antagonize, but she registers on one's consciousness. I understand she will sell her apartment furnishings and automobile for $8,000. Free, she may go. But where? That is her future and that, like her past, belong to her. I don't know why, but I have always believed that behind Jetta Goudal's too perfect calm rages a soul torn and twisting. Its vigor is incongruously mated to a mind that moves with slow, steely precision. A salute in all sincerity to her, a mortal heckled with the afflictions of self.

RUTH ELDER, famous Atlantic flier, continues her discussion of 'Can Women Fly?"

Today I give my ideas of what the woman flier should look for in her search for a school and an instructor. The proximity of the field plays a small part, but is inconsequential.

A drive of several miles to the right school may be time saved. Look over the general arrangements of the school itself. Note the cleanliness and care taken in and about the buildings. The character of the people in the aircraft industry, as in all other businesses is reflected in the places they operate. Next, look at their equipment.

See that the airplanes you are going to take your lessons in are licensed. A dirty ship and a cracked finish may indicate the inside is in the same condition. No need for you to risk poor ships. There are enough excellently equipped places. Now comes the instructor. He is the most important. Until you get into the air and spend some time looking at the back of his head you cannot realize just what I mean. Ask to see his license. The department I know of in which there is no substitute for experience. A good instructor, in my opinion should have had at least three years experience and 1,000 or more flying hours, with no small amount of cross country work. If he measures up to this, his dispostion and his tolerance of your attempts to break into his business will be an agreeable surprise.

Sound Pictures Introduced In Liberty

Reopening today with sound and talking pictures as regular attractions, the Liberty Theater, East End, has as its first sound screen offering Douglas Fairbanks' "The Iron Mask." In addition to the feature length picture, the bill also will offer short talking and singing acts, news pictures and comedies.

Fairbanks talks in the prologue of "The Iron Mask." Sound effects embellish the rest of the production. He is again the dashing D'Artagnan of "The Three Musketeers," of which "The Iron Mask" is a sequel.

Following "The Iron Mask" other United Artists pictures will be shown in the Liberty, including "The Rescue," with Lupe Velez and William Boyd.

EXTRA GIRL? :-: VETERANS :-: SOME ROMANCE!

Guess who? Well, if you can't, we'll tell you. It is Gloria Swanson who dressed up as an extra girl and fooled studio officials.

Robert Edeson, actor, and William DeMille, director, celebrate 24 years of theatrical association with the filming of "The Man Higher Up," a short talkie.

Here is D'Artagnan's son—we mean Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Joan Crawford who will help modernize the romance in "Our Maiden Maidens," Joan's new starring picture.

Reubke's Sonata On Heinroth Program

Two outstanding numbers on Dr. Charles Heinroth's organ recital in Carnegie Music Hall tonight will be Reubke's Sonata, "The Ninety-fourth Psalm," and "Tu es Petra," from "Byzantine Sketches," by Mulet. The program, beginning at 8:15 o'clock, will include: Overture to "Euryanthe," Weber; Le Cygne (The Swan), Saint-Saens; Minuet, from Symphony in E Flat, Mozart;; Nocturne in A Flat, Ferrata, and Airs de Ballet, from "Alceste," Gluck-Saint-Saens.

Tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock Dr. Heinroth will give the following program: Overture to "Tannhauser," Wagner; Offertoire in D Major, Salome; Funeral March of a Marionette, Gounod; Scherzo, from Sonata No. 5, Guilmant; Prelude in C Sharp Minor, Rachmaninoff; Humoresque, Dvorak, and Finale, from First Symphony, Maquaire.

Musician

Willem Van Hoogstraten will conduct the final orchestra concert of the Pittsburgh Symphony Society in the Syria Mosque tomorrow night.

Easy to Appear "Tough," Says Actress

"To look tough, just do the reverse of what you would do to look beautiful," says Beatrice Banyard, who plays the wife of a gangster in Willard Mack's "The Voice of the City," a Cosmopolitan talking picture, which is a feature booking for the Penn.

"I don't think I can give any better beauty advice than to tell my friends what I do not to look beautiful in my character impersonations," says Miss Banyard. "When I have a part such as that of 'Betsy' to play, a girl, disillusioned, beyond the first blush of youth, careless of her appearance—I stop all my visits to the beauty parlor. I stop using cleansing cream at night. I give up massage and let the muscles of my face sag, just as they will with any woman who doesn't use proper care. I don't shampoo my hair. I give it half the usual number of brushes each morning. It doesn't take much of this purposeful neglect to make me look just as 'tacky' as my part requires."

COMEDY AND MUSIC ON STAGE

"Good News," with its peppy musical numbers and dances, including "The Varsity Drag," returns to the Alvin next week for one week only, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday. Among the best remembered numbers are "Good News," "Lucky in Love," "The Best Things in Life are Free" and "On the Campus."

The regular Saturday matinee patrons of the George Sharp Players in the Pitt Theater today will get their first glimpse of Kenneth Daigneau and Pauline MacLean, Mr. Sharp's new leading man and leading woman. Today they will be seen in "This Thing Called Love." Next week's attraction will be "The Big Pond."

The seat sale opens in the Nixon Monday, April 8, at 9 a. m. for the engagement of one week of Ziegfeld's greatest triumph "Rio Rita," coming to that theater Monday night, April 15.

LEATRICE JOY HERE

Leatrice Joy, well known motion picture actress, will appear in person in connection with the new Keith-Albee-Orpheum vaudeville in the Davis next week. It will mark the last week of the season in that theater.

"The Jazz Regiment," all-Negro musical comedy, will open in the Gayety Monday. It is heralded as a musical travesty on life in the Marine Corps.

"The Duke Steps Out," starring William Haines, will open on the Penn screen Monday. The stage will offer Teddy Joyce in "Happy Go Lucky."

"Broadway Melody," song, talk and dance film sensation, will begin its second and final week in the Aldine Monday. Charles King, Bessie Love and Anita Page head the cast. Highlights include sequences that depict a big Broadway revue in action.

MILTON SILLS' FILM

"The Hula dancers in picture studios," says Dorothy Mackaill, "have a great deal more skill than those I saw in Hawaii when we were there for the filming of 'His Captive Woman.'" With Milton Sills, Miss Mackaill is featured in the talking picture, "His Captive Woman," which comes to the Stanley Monday.

Among the burlesques in "The Bohemians," Mutual show opening with a midnight performance in the Academy tomorrow night, will be "The Shooting of Dan M'Grew" and "The Gorilla." Frankie "Red" Moore, Art Mayer and Dollie Lewis are featured in the cast.

The screens in the Harris and Sheridan Square for the first three days of next week will present "Molly and Me," song and talk film, featuring Belle Bennett and Joe E. Brown. The latter is a recruit from the vaudeville and musical comedy stage. Vaudeville acts also will be presented in both theaters.

BILLS OPEN TODAY

"The Modern American evil is bootlegging—bootlegging in love, marriage and divorce as well as in liquor," says Judge Ben B. Lindsey, famous judge of the Denver Juvenile Court, whose book forms the basis for the picture, "Companionate Marriage," opening today in the Enright.

Corinne Griffith begins her second week on the Grand screen today in the picture, "The Divine Lady." The production concerns the historic romance between Lord Nelson, England's naval hero, and Lady Hamilton, a cook's daughter who married a peer.

The Liberty reopens today and inaugurates a policy of sound and talk pictures, the first attraction being "The Iron Mask," starring Douglas Fairbanks.

William Powell plays the character of the famous fiction detective, Phil Vance, in the Paramount all-talking picture, "The Canary Murder Case," which comes to the Regent today.

Sign This Petition and Help to Cut Taxes

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

To the Congress of the United States:

We, the undersigned, respectfully urge that the Congress of the United States give immediate consideration to the proposition that there be a downward revision of all income taxes on all earned incomes such as salaries or fees, or commissions for personal services. We urge this because of the many instances where wage or fee or commission earners sometimes have just a few years of good incomes and prior to and after that period have substantially less incomes. Their period of better earnings which might give the average wage earner a chance to accumulate some capital is heavily taxed and they seldom have a new opportunity which might tend to make more useful citizens of them.

Labor in general, lawyers, doctors, architects, clerical workers, salesmen, dentists, engineers, journalists, accountants, actors, motion picture actors, singers, musicians, and all the other professional people are in the same plight in the matter of earned income as distinguished from earnings on capital, and since they represent a great percentage of the citizenry of the country, we beg the earnest consideration of this proposition. Each signer below hereby enrolls as a member of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph League for the Downward Revision of Taxes on earned incomes and will work with that newspaper toward the end stated.

Permission is hereby granted the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph to list the signer in the proper Labor, Clerical or Professional Division of the said League for presentation to our signatures to the United States Congress for the stated purpose.

The signer is not obliged to make any kind of contribution or to do anything except to give his moral support to this movement.

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

Be Beautiful—But Don't Be Dumb

"THE world is so full of BEAUTIFUL girls, I'm sure we should all be as happy as earls!"

Exactly! The world is full of beautiful girls—SO full, that they are a drug on the market, and a Plain Jane is almost a relief.

You've got to have something besides a pair of perfect legs, a piquant nose and spun-gold hair, these days, in order to draw an interested glance from a man. Every man is a bus conductor as far as women are concerned. Beautiful knees are no treat to HIM!

* * *

You've got to have individuality — PERSONALITY—in order to stand out from the crowd, or to register in any man's consciousness.

With all the first aids to beauty so easy and accessible, any girl can be good-looking, and nearly every girl is. Even "IT" and "sex appeal" have become such common commodities, that almost any little thing with one working brain cell can simulate them.

* * *

Men are tired of being "vamped" and sick being "It-ed," anyway. They have had such an overdose of "sex-appeal" that most of them are fed up on it.

* * *

You've got to be distinctive, or surprising, or interesting or unusual in order to draw anything but a bored glance or a yawn from the average man.

* * *

Pretty faces are so plentiful that nobody even turns around to look at them. And as for clothes—nobody can "wear clothes" in the smartest sense these days.

There are no dowdy women, any more. Every girl is a fashion plate, a style show, and a work of art. You can't tell by looking at her whether she's going downtown to a factory job or going to a tea dance. All women are sartorial experts.

But where every woman is charming, no woman is a charmer.

The reign of the Beautiful Dumbbell is over! Men are sick of molluscs and morons. "Cuties" and manikins are OUT! For the first time since the days of ancient Athens, men are demanding brains and intelligence and originality in women.

* * *

In order to get across today, a girl must have distinction and individuality. She must STAND for something, BE somebody. You can't win with a smile or a kiss or a pair of long eyelashes any more. They are all drugs on the market.

* * *

It is that grain of "difference" which God put into every human soul that constitutes "personality." It is that "lamp within" which shines through, lights up the eyes and catches the imagination.

* * *

You've got to be DIFFERENT—or you won't be noticed! The way to a man's heart is no longer through his senses, but through his imagination! And it takes something besides beauty and clothes and synthetic sex appeal to get into a man's imagination. It takes personality! It takes an alarm clock to wake him up! It takes BRAINS.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Body Weakened by Illness Easy Prey for Germs

IN the very nature of things as they are at present, there will be children to have measles, and adults to have influenza or hard colds. The time will come when these diseases will disappear, but that glad day has not arrived.

DR. COPELAND

For a long time doctors will be needed to deal with these ailments. It is fortunate we have the medical men.

But here is a problem: Why do not people realize that it is the aftermath of these ailments that is dangerous? Indeed, the after-effects of the troubles I have mentioned, as well as of other diseases, are far more important than their immediate effects.

Nobody dies of measles, or influenza, or colds. If anybody dies it is because of a "complication," of an effect produced by the original disease.

The pus germs, the germs of pneumonia, the germs of tuberculosis, are always watchfully waiting. They are all ready to pounce on the body weakened by disease.

The most important thing about measles and influenza and such ailments, is to get well of the measles or influenza without getting something else. For that reason, the after care of a patient is in many respects vastly more important than his care in the height of the disease.

In olden times, it was announced in triumphant tones, "The fever is broke." Yes, the fever may be broken, the immediate danger may be passed, but there is much left to do. The weakened and emaciated and debilitated victim of disease must be restored to strength, vigor and renewed resistance.

I have in mind now a dear woman who first had influenza. Then she developed broncho-pneumonia. After the acute symptoms of the latter disease disappeared, she failed to "get up" as she should.

About that time I happened in for a neighborly call and was asked for a professional opinion. Since her own doctor had gone on a vacation, I undertook an examination. This revealed a dullness in the upper part of the right lung.

A doctor doesn't like this condition. When it is associated with occasional elevation of temperature a degree or two above normal, coughing spells, loss of appetite and red cheeks, it means infection. What sort of infection? Probably tubercular.

That was what happened in the case I have described. Lowered resistance and the weakened lung had prepared the way for the germs of tuberculosis.

Let me say in strongest terms: Don't consider yourself well and ready for your ordinary duties until the last evidence of disease has disappeared.

It is a great mistake to go to work too soon. You may count yourself a loafer if you stay in after the acute symptoms have gone. You may think you can "work off" your ailment. This is foolish. It is worse than foolish—it is positively dangerous.

Make sure your patient is really well from measles, influenza or a hard cold before he is permitted to get back to hard work.

WESTWARD—HO!

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

"Will It Still Be the Golden West?"

WOULDN'T it be a sodden soul that didn't feel some of the same uplifting thrill that shook the first young man who "went West" upon its setting out for the Golden West again after an absence of 10 years? And all the time one has been hearing about it like an exile getting rumors from home. "Its growth"—"its changes"—"its transformation from a youngster in chaps to a business man in tweeds"—"its new color"—"its new sophistication." But thinks I—whose Eastern-bred husband can never believe I was NOT a two-gun cowgirl just because I came out of the West—thinks I—even if the last of the "Westerns" has been said to have been already made in motion pictures and the Indian has become a showman with the white man as producer, nothing can change the fact that a different, a farther, a brighter, a bluer, a more magical SKY canopies the West than any the EAST has to show except in October. And as long as its sky of unbelievable Italian-enamel blue still shimmers over it, and that same sky breathes an air that can't be guessed at or imitated, as long as the beauty of its sky, mountains, desert and sea are there, the WEST will be "OUT WEST," and packed with romance! I even expect, in spite of dude ranches and loose counts hovering in the foot-hills of the place known as Hollywood, to find the MAN of the WEST, his face and his gallantry unchanged!

The nice long tickets are bought; for an extraordinary gran'mother, the only baby that ever was yet or will be, a husband "beyond compare" unless there be another such on another star, and the lady-artist, who's going Home to take a look at its immensity, which will either inspire or overpower her humble but earnest talents.

Au revoir—but not good-bye, of course.

Madge Plans to Leave for Easthampton

I LOOKED at Katherine with a sudden fear clutching at my heart.

"You don't mean Mother Graham is in danger of dying because of this excitement," I gasped.

Katherine turned on me sternly.

"I don't mean anything of the kind," she said. "In fact, her heart is in better shape than it has been for years. Of course, anger like that isn't particularly good for a woman of her years, and there's always a possibility of her collapsing from any strong excitement. But it's a possibility, not a probability, remember, and even if she did, you have no reason to blame yourself."

"Oh, but—" I began, but she ignored my interruption.

"I'm going to repeat what I said a few minutes ago, in words of one syllable or thereabouts," she went on, "for you don't seem to grasp my meaning at all. If you humor her this time and give in to her, she'll be twice as arrogant in the next tantrum which will soon follow, you know that. It will be impossible to humor her every time, and every time she gets angry it weakens her just that much. Think a minute. You wouldn't permit Junior to have his own way in a tantrum like that even if there was a slight possibility of his collapsing because he was denied his way. You'd count the terrible cost to him later. Of course, you're not developing your mother-in-law's future character—" her mouth quirked in a mirthful grin—"but you are insuring her and everybody else from misery and distinct danger for her."

"You're such a comfort, Katrina," I breathed fervently, for she had indeed eased my mind of an awful fear.

"I've only reminded you of something you know yourself," she disclaimed. "But I'll try to be of real service later on. May I suggest that it would be a good plan for you to make yourself conspicuous by your absence this afternoon. Isn't there something which calls you away?"

"Indeed there is," I said, and told her of my listening in on Mary's telephone call.

"I feel like Katie in her 'snoopiest' moments," I finished, "but—"

"What choice had you?" she demanded comfortingly. "We've all agreed that she must be watched, and you happened to be the goat today—that's all there is to that. I think it's a splendid plan for you to go to Easthampton. You may get a line on something if you accidentally run across her there. And with Katie gone, I may be able to get Mother Graham down to the kitchen. I know nothing of the argument, remember, and I'll bet I can fix up some excuse about some favorite dish of Junior's for which I need her advice. When she's once down there, she'll eat if she's hungry, never fear. Don't hurry back, remember. I want plenty of time to work on this case."

The merry smile she flashed at me cheered me wonderfully as I left her and went to my room to think over my projected trip to Easthampton. I must leave ahead of Mary and Prince Georges, that was certain. I would announce that I was going to Sag Harbor, and then think up some plausible excuse for having driven on to Easthampton if I should encounter them there.

I made another trip to the kitchen just before luncheon, and to my surprise found Katie absent. As I turned to leave, she appeared at the door leading from her own quarters, with her hands clasped around the handle of a bulging suitcase.

Horoscopes

Sunday, April 7

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds many graces and favors for the sanctities of the day. Church, charity and their avocations should be particularly active and strong. Affairs generally should be lively and gratifying, especially if attained by means of correspondence.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a very lively and progressive year, with all things responding to initiative and a spirit of bold adventure. Finances should expand as well as business, employment bring recognition and writings gain many preferments.

A child born on this day may be active, progressive and well equipped for success and advancement to the place of its ambitions in life.

If you should enter the Temple for no other purpose than asking, you shall not receive.—Kahlil Gibran.

Monday, April 8

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is a rather inauspicious one, holding menace to business as well as to the personal well-being. There may be delays and disappointments in the affairs, as well as sudden visitations of a devastating nature. Be careful in speculations, litigation, and safeguard the physical self. There may be compensations in the personal relations.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a hazardous year to fortunes, business and physical safety. Precaution should be taken against all manner of perils. Shun speculation and law. Domestic and social affairs may bring consolations.

A child born on this day may have many excellent graces and qualities for success—which it may need for surmounting many difficult situations in life. It may have a leaning to invention, original thought and occultism.

Bosom up my counsel, you will find it wholesome.—Shakespeare.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Mother Invites Him

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

A man who lives in another city came to see me and he stayed in a hotel. I think this was proper. I am planning to ask this young man to a dance which will necessitate his staying over night, and perhaps he will stay in town two nights. In this case, is it proper for me to invite him to stay at my home? If so, is it necessary to mention it when writing, and what is the correct way to word it? M. M.

IF it is convenient for you and your family to have him stay at your home for this time, it is perfectly correct for him to be invited. But your mother, or whoever is the hostess of your home if you have no mother, is the one through whom the invitation must be given. She would write a note something like this:

Dear Mr. Robinson:

We should be very happy if, when you come to —— to go to the dance with Mary on Friday, you will give us the pleasure of having you stay with us, at our home. Will you? Please arrange to. We will meet you at the train that arrives here at quarter before six on Friday, and we hope that you will plan to stay just as long as possible with us.

Friendly greetings from us all, and high anticipations of having you with us over the week-end.

Cordially yours,

Without Escorts

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Kindly advise me if it is proper, permissable and in good taste for two college or business women to attend a dinner at night without escorts? The dinners I have reference to are those given by women's clubs and college fraternities, at which both men and women are present.

A. C. E.

I SEE no reason why the women should not go to these dinners without escorts, unless it is taken for granted that "partners" are necessary.

Pork Tenderloins

Select short, thick pork tenderloins and have them split open. Place on a buttered broiler and broil thoroughly, turning often. Serve on a hot dish dusted with salt, pepper and buttered nicely. Garnish with sliced fried apple. Again the tenderloins may be fried in a little butter until done and lightly browned, served on a hot dish and garnished with parsley. Serve apple sauce and baked sweet potatoes with the tenderloins. Or the tenderloins may be stuffed and baked in the same way as the chops already described.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Pittsburgh Man Weds Southern Girl in Asheville, N. C.

THESE balmy spring days seem made especially for weddings, don't they? A lot of girls whose engagements were announced during the fall and winter seem to agree with me on that point, too. And if they had been able to order the weather in advance, they couldn't have chosen better—at least, as the day is starting out. In April one can't anticipate the weather by even a few hours.

It must be even more delightful today, though, down in Asheville, N. C., where a Pittsburgh man is being married to a southern girl. At noon today Josephine Borton Marvel, daughter of the Roscoe Anderson Marvels, of Biltmore, Asheville, became Mrs. Joseph Franklin Kuntz, Jr., at a wedding in All Souls Episcopal Church, Biltmore. Mr. Kuntz, you know, is a son of Joseph F. Kuntz, of Center avenue, Schenley Farms.

The ceremony was performed by Bishop Frank Du Moulin, of the Church of the Saviour, Philadelphia, from which town the Marvels migrated to Biltmore a few years ago. Palms and white roses, together with masses of Easter lilies decorated the altar, and at either side were tall white candles. Josephine wore ivory satin made on classic lines, with a long court train falling from the shoulders. Her tulle veil was held with a cap of Princess lace and she carried white orchids, roses and lilies of the valley.

Virginia Marvel was her sister's maid of honor, appearing in orchid chiffon with a picture hat of orchid horsehair braid, and carrying pink and yellow roses, daffidils and tulips. Similarly made frocks in chartreuse green were worn by the bridesmaids, Betty McKinney and Georgie Newcomb, of Miami, Fla.; Edith Sinclair, of Asheville; Evelyn Marvel, of New York; Virginia Jones, of London, O., and Jean Galbraith, of Biltmore Forest. They carried orchids and ferns.

Blair Day Kuntz was his brother's best man and the ushers included Wallace Hurtte Rowe, Pr., Graham McCargo and William S. Stimmel, Jr., all local men; Emery Marvel, Josephine's brother; Julian Woodcock, Jr., and Frank Hood, Jr., all of Asheville.

After the service there was a breakfast in Kenilworth Inn, the bridal table being decorated entirely in white. Mr. and Mrs. Kuntz will sail on Wednesday for a three months' trip abroad and when they return they will live in Pittsburgh.

Josephine made her debut two seasons ago in Asheville, and is a member of the Junior League.

ANOTHER out-of-town wedding of interest is that of Carolyn Stotz, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Robert A. Stotz, of Easton, Pa., and David B. Fraser, of Orange, N. J., scheduled for 4 o'clock today in the College Hill Presbyterian Church of Easton. And the maid of honor is a Pittsburgh girl, Marie Chalfant, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Edward C. Chalfant, of Sheridan avenue. She is wearing green lace with a hat to match, and the bridesmaids, Mary Louise Laubaugh, Helen Hess, Elizabeth DeLong, Mrs. Donald Richards, and Mrs. Marvin Riddle, all of Easton, appeared in pink lace with hats to match. The bridal gown is of white satin and d'alencon lace, made with a full court train.

Charles Page, of Montclair, is best man and the ushers include Francis R. Doyle, of Orange; Edward Page, of Montclair; Dr. Donald C. Richards, of Easton; Park C. Mason, of Long Branch, N. J., and J. Frederic Weber, of New Jersey.

A reception at the Northampton Country Club follows the ceremony, and later Mr. and Mrs. Fraser are leaving to take a month's trip to Cuba. They wil make their home in Phillips Court, Orange.

Marie Chalfant went East last Sunday to attend the parties preceding the wedding, and she entertained on Wednesday in the Country Club. A number of local people went East on Thursday for the ceremony.

THE wedding of Helen Jackson Todd, daughter of George A. Todd, of the Schenley Apartments, and G. Warren Wattles, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Warren Wattles, of Denniston avenue, took place last night at 7 o'clock in the Third Presbyterian Church, with the pastor, the Rev. Dr. W. L. McEwan, and the Rev. Dr. C. Ronald Garmey, of Calvary Episcopal Church, officiating. Helen wore a gown of Callot satin with a train falling extending from the hem line, and her veil of ivory tulle was held with a cap of antique Leir and rose point lace. She carried calla lilies.

Mrs. Kirkland Wiley Todd, Helen's sister-in-law, was matron of honor, appearing in heather chiffon, with a full skirt made short in front and trailing in back, and a straw hat made close-fitting in front and deeply dropping at the sides and back. Darrel Ewing Morrow, as maid of honor, wore sunset chiffon, similarly made, with a hat of sunset straw, while Neptune green chiffon frocks with hats to match were worn by the bridesmaids, Elizabeth Wattles, Margaret Rodgers, Marguerite Hine and Mrs. Robert B. Caldwell, of Pittsburgh; Ruth Alice Brown, of Lake Providence, La., and Margaret Leach, of Baltimore.

Burt Kerr Todd, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer. James Coffman was best man and the ushers included Kirkland Wiley Todd and Robert Charles Todd, brothers of the bride; French V. Anderson, William H. Gantner, William Wilkins, Robert B. Caldwell, of this city, and S. Morris Miller, of Wilmington, Del.

A reception and dinner in the University Club followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Wattles will spend their honeymoon in Bermuda and after May 1 will be at home in the Schenley Apartments.

THERE is going to be still another wedding this spring—that of Mildred Elizabeth Griffith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Jackson Griffith, of the Bellefield Dwellings, and Jack Wible Lyon, son of the Walter Lyons, of Casa Leon, Sewickley. Mildred has chosen Monday, May 6, for her marriage, the ceremony to be performed at 6:30 o'clock in her home. It is to be a very small wedding, with no bridal party, and only the immediate families in attendance.

* * *

ONE of our winter brides and her husband are returning from their wedding trip, I hear. The junior Van Lear Perry Shrivers, of Sewickley, who were married in January, will be home next week after a three months' trip to Africa, and will live for the present in Quaker road, Edgeworth. Mrs. Shriver, you know, was Marie McBride, before she was married.

TRAVELING still holds its charm for Pittsburghers. Did you know that Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sweetser Tack and their daughter, Lois, of Beaver road, Sewickley, are spending the week in New York? And that the Edward J. Schellentragers, of the Schenley Apartments, are now stopping at the Mayflower Motel in Washington, D. C.? Or that Mrs. John M. Milliken, of the Schenley Apartments, who has been touring the continent, is spending some time at the Savoy Hotel in London before flying to Paris, and expects to return home late in the spring? Or that the George Hobart Baileys, of Dunmoyle place, and Mrs. Charles L. Netting, of Howe street, are home again after spending the winter in Florida and Cuba? Or that Mrs. William Penn Snyder and Mrs. L. Campbell Stewart, who were in New York, have gone to Atlantic City?

Dr. H. Boyd Edwards. Only the families and a few friends were in attendance, and the wedding music was played by James P. Johnston. Mr. and Mrs. Eddison are taking a short trip to Washington and will sail next Saturday on the Homeric to make their home at Tunbridge Wells.

THE marriage of Miss Mildred E. Hannan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Hannan, of Ross avenue, Wilkinsburg, and Jesse S. After an extensive western motor trip, Mr. and Mrs. Richardson will be at home in Philadelphia. Mr. Richardson is a graduate of the Wyoming University School of Engineering, class of 1926.

SALES OF DOPE IN MANY JAILS REVEALED

WASHINGTON, April 6.—"Dope for sale in jail."

This sign could be tacked on the walls of several jails throughout the country, for official government records show that dope not only is smuggled but can be purchased by addicts in many prisons.

Because drugs are so easily concealed, federal and state authorities have been baffled in breaking up the traffic.

In New York there is a jail known among the addicts as the "hop head's paradise." prisoners have testified that dope is cheaper in the jail than on the outside.

JAILS "WIDE OPEN"

Only recently federal officers received a letter from two young prisoners in jail in a Pacific coast city. One said he had received his first "shot" of dope there. The letter described conditions as being virtually "wide open."

"We have seen plenty of booze and dope," the prisoners wrote. "Dope fiends who have money get all the dope they want here. Those who have no money have to lay here and kick their habit.

"We have seen an office passing dope to an addict every day as long as his money held out. We have also seen an addict go out into the office and come back with dope and two of them sit down at the table and shoot it."

TRIED TO KILL GUARD

These are not isolated charges. John W. Snook, ex-warden of the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, 'is authority for the statement that prisoners attempted to kill a guard who had been energetic in ferreting out addicts.

The guard was stationed in a corner of the cell house containing 800 convicts. The cell house ran five tiers high.

"One of those inmates carried a rock to the top and threw it down at the guard, and missed his head by an inch," said Snook.

Pasteurization

All Liberty Milk, except Certified milk is pasteurized. This means that it is heated to a temperature of 145 degrees for a period of 30 minutes. Pasteurization of milk is a Government requirement—and rightly so. This remarkable method of milk purification was discovered by Louis Pasteur in the middle of the 19th century. Pasteurization, which is really a par-boiling process, frees milk of any harmful germs without in any way changing the quality or delicious flavor of the milk.

AVOID UGLY PIMPLES

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

FRED CLARKE'S IDEA NOT ADOPTED

WHEN George Stallings and other big league baseball managers began to carry two sets of outfielders so that they might present right-hand pitchers, and vice versa, Fred Clarke, then manager of the Pirates, was one of the diamond generals who argued against the system. "It is asserted that left-hand batters cannot hit southpaw hurlers," Clarke remarked. "Well, what is the reason? It's simply because they don't get a chance to accustom themselves to batting against left-handers. Every time a southpaw opposes them they're taken out of the lineup. Let them stay in there and they'll learn how to hit the fork-handers." Clarke himself, though a left-hand hitter, never was bothered by southpaws, and the same thing may be said of all the other really good southside hitters that the game has known, such as Tris Speaker, Ty Cobb, Eddie Collins, Mike Donlin, George Sisler, Eddie Roush, Larry Doyle and the rest.

Melvin Ott

But Clarke's advice never has been generally followed. The major league pilots, always playing the old percentage, decline to use left-hand hitters against southpaw pitchers until they learn to hit them. John McGraw was the latest to try it. The Giant leader announced a few weeks ago that he was going to discard the old system of shifting his outfielders to meet the switch of enemy pitching. But now he intimates that he will abandon the plan.

"INDICATIONS are that I'll have to get away from such a situation as exists on the Cleveland club, with its five left-hand hitters," McGraw says. "There have been some really good left-hand hitters who were just as effective against southpaws as against right-handers, but as a general thing left-hand batters shy at left-hand hurling. Two of my left-hand hitting outfielders, Roush and Welsh, are not bothered much by southpaws.

"But Melvin Ott had a poor record against left-hand pitchers last year, and I think that Fred Leach is another who is not overly fond of southpaw pitching. Over one stretch of five or six games in which I permitted Ott to bat against left-handers last year he struck out 13 times in 27 trips to the plate. Of course, you're not going to get very far at that rate, but this spring I have kept him in there in the hope that he would improve. Perhaps he will. McGraw's tone, however, is said to have indicated that he doubted it."

THE Phillies will lose more than the value of Tommy Thevenow's individual playing services, during the time that he will be out of the game as a result of his recent accident, a period that is reported at anywhere from six months to a whole season.

The strength of the whole team and of the infield in particular will be affected. With Don Hurst at first base, Fresco Thompson at second, Pinkey Whitney at third and Tommy Thevenow at shortstop, the Quakers promised to have one of the best infields in the majors, but Thevenow's absence will knock a big hole in it.

Fresco Thompson

ONE player in particular who will miss Thevenow sorely is Thompson. That former Pirate was a pretty nifty second sacker even before Thevenow went to the Phils, but spring reports were to the effect that with Tommy playing at his side he had become a great deal better. In fact, Thevenow was making him look like a really remarkable second sacker and helping him to improve himself in every branch of play at the keystone, and the two were working together in such fashion that more than one visitor to the spring camps ex-

RECORD MARKS SET IN PITT TRIALS

By JESS CARVER

Unfamiliar as I am with the various signs of the Zodiac, it seems that today must be the sign of the Duck. There are enough swimming meets in town to keep the web-footed clan happy for a year. No less that three aquatic carnivals are scheduled, one at the Keystone A. C., another at the P. A. A. and the third, the finals of the University of Pittsburgh scholastic and university championship event, in the Trees gym pool. The latter is billed for 2:00 p. m.

Walter Laufer

The Keystone Club affair has a colorful out-of-town entry, three nationally known splashers being billed for preformances there tonight. Walter Laufer, of the Lake Shore A. C. of Chicago and Mickey Relly and Dutch Smith of the Los Angeles A. C. will take to the Keyston tank.

Laufer plans to attempt to lower Johnny Weismuller's record for the 100-yard free style race in the feature act. Reily is a fancy diver of note (not a fistic diver) and will give an exhibition of his art. He was a member and point winner of the 1928 Olympic team.

The P. A. A. meet is an open affair, with the junior A. M. A. low board fancy diving championship for men as the feature. A 440-yard free style swim for men and a 25-yard handicap race for women, together with a water polo exhibition, completes the card. Gold, silver and bronze medals will be awarded.

TWO RECORDS FALL

The opening events of the Pitt meet, held last night in Trees gym pool, saw the smashing of two interscholastic records. It took a team from away up-state—Erie Central—to break the mark of 1:23 1-5 hung up by Peabody in the 160-yard relay event. The Erie quartet was a fifth of a second faster in the first trial heat of the event.

Norton of Perry High won the favor of the spectators with his marvelous performance in the 100-yard free style in which he set a mark of :57 for the distance. Anderson of Kiski held the former record.

In the 40-yard free style, Reilly of Peabody equalled the record of 19 seconds set up by the late T. O. Matthews of Shady Side Academy. The summary of the preliminary tests follows:

160-yard relay, senior high schools—Trials—Qualifiers: Erie Central (Higgins, Glske, Argelander, Donovan); Peabody, Duquesne, Oliver. Best time by Erie Central, 1:23 flat. New meet record. (Old established by Peabody, 1927 1:23 1-5.)

40-yard free style, Pitt championships—Won by Woodridge; Swenson, second; Alserise, third. Time—:19 3-5.

Fancy diving, high school—won by Carrick, South: Jones, Wilkinsburg, second; Schmieler, Carrick, third.

40-yard free style, high school—Trials—4 qualifiers; Reilly, Peabody; Nicholson, Turtle Creek; Norton, Perry; Ackerman Peabody. Best time, Reilly, Peabody, :19. (Ties record established by T. O. Matthews, Shadyside Academy, 1925.)

Great Welcome Awaits Segrave In England

LONDON, April 6.—(A.P.)—Unusual honors have been planned for Maj. H. D. D. Seagrave, holder of the world automobile speed record, when he reaches Southampton next Friday on his return from America.

The Admiralty will pay him the special compliment of sending a squadron of destroyers to escort his ship, the Olympic, from Spithead to Southampton. A group of flying boats and airplanes also will accompany the liner. All shipping in the port will be dressed in honor of the occasion. A civic reception and a private dinner party also are being arranged at Southampton.

RISKO BEATS VON PORAT

BOSTON, April 6.—(INS.)—Johnny Risko, the Cleveland iron man, was back in the front rank of heavyweight contenders today as a result of his victory over Otto Von Porat, slugging Norwegian, in a 10-round bout at the Boston Garden last night. Von Porat failed to win a round, Risko taking eight rounds and the seventh and tenth being even.

Risko's victory was something of an upset. He had lost his last three fights while Von Porat had uncorked a devastating punch in giving Tom Heeney a severe drubbing. Because of his defeat last night, the Norwegian probably will lose his promised bout with Max Schmeling, the German sensation, at Ebbets Field this summer.

Risko, who was stopped by Schmeling recently, uncorked a stiff left jab that kept Von Porat guessing. Although the Cleveland baker boy was shorter than the former Norwegian royal guard and gave away reach by more than two inches, he kept boring in and peppered the rangy Von Porat with hard rights and lefts to the head and body. Von Porat did little damage with his highly-touted right hand and he took considerable punishment.

The Cleveland veteran was the aggressor throughout the bout and showed a better defense. Only in the seventh and tenth rounds was Von Porat able to stem the tide of gloves that came his way.

Risko landed about four punches to Von Porat's one, and did so much infighting that the Norwegian was unable to get started.

RANDALL LOSES ON FOUL TO YOUNG RUDY

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor

An accidental low right ended one of the best main bouts of the year here in the Moose Temple last night, Young Rudy, of Charleroi, thereby winning on a foul over Tiger Joe Randall, Negro welterweight, of Elizabeth, Pa., in the ninth round. Three weeks ago, in the same ring, Randall stopped the winning career of Dominick Profio, the knock-out puncher of Cecil, boxing his way to a victory in 10 rounds and thus becoming a headliner.

Young Rudy

Rudy was ahead when the bout reached its untimely end last night, but Randall was rallying desperately and had a chance to even matters or go ahead in the full distance. Joe was throwing his boxing skill to the winds and lashing out with both fists and had Rudy on the receiving end throughout the round up to the time the right went low. Rudy sagged in a clinch that followed the landing of the blow and protested, and Referee Joe Keally halted the bout and helped Rudy's seconds assist him to his corner. After a short consultation, with Boxing Commissioner Havey J. Boyle participating, the bout was awarded to Rudy.

DING-DONG BATTLE

It was a ding-dong fight all the way, with Rudy getting off to a great start in the first two rounds, in which Randall was slow to warm up to his work and took quite a leathering. Rudy stabbed him and crossed with his right and cuffed him in the clinches, and the Tiger fought back only in spurts. Beginning with the third round, Randall began to hit his stride, and he outgeneraled Rudy in this and the next session, making Rudy miss and winging him with both hands and pumping his body in the clinches.

The tide of battle turned again in the next two rounds, which went to Rudy, who again took the initiative and worked on Randall as he had done in the first two frames. One solid overhead right smash to the jaw in the sixth round forced Randall to hold on in a clinch.

The seventh found Randall's stock in the ascendancy again as he rallied to force the issue throughout. He did not give Rudy a chance to set himself. In the eighth, Rudy again was out in front. It was a slugging session, with Rudy in command from bell to bell.

LOW BLOW ENDS IT

Came then the ninth and last round. Randall, well behind, tore out to make a fighting finish in the last two rounds and he soon had Rudy on the defensive. He was swinging with both fists and forcing Rudy before him when suddenly a right went below the line, and that was the end of as hard-fought a battle as we've had around here this season.

The pair were well matched. Both scaled 143½ pounds at 3 p. m., and both are short and compact in build, with short arms. Randall was the better boxer, but Rudy the better slugger. As a result of the outcome in Rudy's favor, the latter likely will be rematched with Dominick Profio, who knocked him out in McKeesport shortly before Randall defeated Profio.

MURRAY BEATS VIVIO

Jackie Murray, Negro, of the Hill, weighing 141 pounds, outboxed Johnny Vivio, of Bloomfield, 143½,

BUSH TO PICK OPENING GAME HURLER SOON

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

DALLAS, Tex., April 6.—Donie Bush stated today he would be able to decide on his opening day pitcher when the Pirates take on Memphis.

The Freebooters are slated to resume their frolics with the Tigers in Shreveport next Monday. After that, three more games are carded with the American Leaguers in that place. It is likely the manager then will be in a position to name his man.

The catching assignment at this time would seem to be in doubt. Both Charley Hargreaves and Rolly Hemsley are doing good work. The veteran has keen competition in the lively coal miner, whose snappy actions have tended to make Hargreaves speed up.

HEMSLEY BATS WELL

Hemsley strengthed his cause recently by his clean batting. Rolly suddenly started to slap the ball like a real hitter. All he needs to be is a fair swatsmith to be a valuable man to the club.

Among the assets possessed by Harry Riconda and Dick Bartell as they patrol the left side of the diamond is ginger. Traynor's understudy and Daredevil Dick are seldom still.

Regardless of the skill shown by Riconda and Bartell it is likely that Manager Bush will make a change as quickly as Pie Traynor and Sparky Adams recover. There is no doubt about third base when pie is ready, but Bartell is making Bush ponder by his all-around brilliance.

SHEELY HAS "REACH"

Earl Sheely will save many an error this year, judging by his antics in the spring training game. The six-feet-four first sacker can stay on one foot and reach for balls that would hardly be caught by others with a jump. And Earl is unusually sure of long flings, making the play where the pitcher covers, the Paso Robles athlete is a past master.

Joe Dawson and Fred Fussell have forced themselves into Bush's slab reckonings. This pair of flingers has been effective ever since the training season started. It would not be surprising if Dawson were to start one of the games in the opening series with the Cubs. Bush may keep his southpaw out of action there on account of the preponderance of right hand batters in the Bruin lineup.

Hoppe Maintains Lead Over Hall

NEW YORK, April 6.—(AP.)—Willie Hoppe maintained his big lead over Allan Hall in their 12-block three-cushion billiard match yesterday. The two blocks were split, but Hoppe last night led the young St. Louisan, 500 to 441, with two more blocks to be played.

Hall took the afternoon block, 61 to 50 in 42 innings. His high run was eight, Hoppe's six. Hoppe came back to win the night block, 50 to 37, in 46 innings. Hoppe's best cluster was six, Hall's five.

BOOTS SHIFTED TO LEFT FIELD BY BUSH

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

DALLAS, April 6.—With a view of presenting his best possible lineup against the Cubs one week from Tuesday in the big opener, Manager Bush last night announced that he contemplated an important change in his battle-front.

Geo. Grantham

Bush said he would move George Grantham to left field, the second-base post to go to Dick Bartell with Sparky Adams performing at short.

The brilliance of Bartell in the recent battles has helped to sway Bush toward the anticipated change. The switch is expected to go into effect in Shreveport when Pie Traynor may be ready to play. Adams is almost ready now.

Bush announced his probable lineup as follows: Adams, short; L. Waner, center; P. Waner, right; Grantham, left; Traynor, third; Sheely, first; Bartell, second, and the catcher and pitcher.

COMOROSKY BENCHED

In the event that Traynor will be unable to go to his position, Riconda would go to third base, and Sheely would bat in fifth place.

This arrangement, it will be noted, would put Adam Comorosky on the bench. However, the plan may not be permanent. Moreover, the Buccos are likely to run against a flock of good right-hand pitchers in the opening series and Bush would thus have a lot of southpaw hitters to use against that style of pitching.

Be that as it may, Daredevil Dick is playing a fine brand of ball that Bush's approval has been won. Bartell seems determined to battle his way to a spot in the opening game.

P. WANER MAY PLAY

Paul Waner probably will make his season's debut this afternoon when the Pirates take on the Dallas Steers in the first battle of a two-game series.

Brother Paul was among those present this morning as the Pirates moved about and Manager Bush in discussing the status of the erstwhile holdout, declared that Paul likely would swing into action in today's game.

"And why not?" mused Donie. "Paul will need some real batting practice for the big stuff that starts one week from Tuesday, and there is no place like a real ball game for a fellow to get hitting practice."

Bush undoubtedly is correct in his views. Moreover, Paul already has played in two games this spring and in a general way he is close to condition. The Pirates have nine more contests on their exhibition card before the ball rings to start the championship race. Those nine games should have the desired effect on the star hitter.

TIGERS SUNK

Earl Sheely, with a homer of Ruthian proportions, sank the poor Tigers again yesterday at Fort Worth, just two hours before the Buccos hopped a rattler that brought them across the 30 odd miles of country to Dallas.

The Pirates went into the last half of the ninth with a one-run deficit. Things looked dark for the Pittsburghers when a sacrifice play failed to function, but Big Earl from Paso Robles discounted all of this by driving the ball far out of the lot by way of the left field fence, Comorosky and Riconda also

THEVENOW RECOVERING

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., April 6.—(AP.)—Tommy Thevenow is slowly recovering from the broken jaw and other injuries suffered in an automobile accident last Tuesday, it was said today at the hospital. Physicians said they are satisfied the Phillies' shortstop has "nothing to worry about unless infection sets in."

REAL BATTLE MARKS PIN TOURNEY

One of the most thrilling battles in bowling history was staged on the Strand Alleys, Oakland, in the Tri-State duckpin classic, when the Brideson and Lacy quintet from Vandergrift met the Fair Furniture Company team from the South Side in a contest that sent them both to the top of the heap and put the Vandergrift five ahead by the slender margin of one point. The scores were Brideson and Lacy, 2,506; Fair Furniture five, 2,505.

And the most theatrical part of the performance is that these two teams took the alleys together in an effort to settle a long-standing rivalry. When they found themselves both entered in the classic, they asked Manager Hilary Wertz to be allowed to lock horns by pacing each other, and this sensational match with a tourney was the result.

TAKE EARLY LEAD

The South Siders swept into a comfortable lead in the first game by scoring 874, to the Vandergrifters' 836, but in the second, the tables were turned, 876 to 826, and Vandergrift had the lead by a 12-pin margin, 1,712 to 1,700. This Brideson-Lacy lead was barely enough, for they fell to 794 in the third game, while their rivals made 805. Hamilton and Cunningham held Brideson and Lacy in the running, while Buckley and Poke performed consistently for the Southsiders.

Eddie Edwards of the Penn Recreation, put in a sterling bid for the John Miljus prize for consecutive strikes when, bowling in the doubles with Nelson, he rolled a strike in the seventh frame of his first game, struck out in finishing that one, and toppled three more strikes in his second game. Had Eddie been going it alone in the singles in his three doubles games he would be at the top of the individuals today, for he turned in scores of 233, 214 and 188, a 635 total. As it is, he and Nelson are in second place in the doubles with 1,105. Edwards is the leading all-events' man, with 170, 148 and 197 in his five-man performance, the doubles' score noted above, and 208 171 and 97, in his singles, a total of 1,627.

HAMILTON ROLLS 602

Lee Hamilton, of the Brideson and Lacy team came close to the top in the singles. His 602 was just two pins under the 604, hung up by Casey the preceding night.

There were no other changes last night, but today, the last day of the tourney, will see a concerted drive in all events, beginning at two o'clock, with bowlers from Meadville, Erie, Vandergrift, Butler, Clairton, Homestead and several local squads competing. Last night's scores:

scoring on the smash. The score was 10 to 8.

The Bushwhackers had the Bengals beaten by two tallies as the ninth opened. In the first half the enemy mixed four hits with a base on balls and a hit batsman for three tallies. Dick Bartell prevented at least two more runs in the round by a sensational one-hand stop with the bases loaded and two out.

SHEELY HITS HOMER

Fred Brickell opened the Pirate half with a single and Comorosky walked. Riconda laid down a nice bunt, but the Tigers held Brickell so close to second by their smart movements that the fleet Fred was forced at third. Up came Sheely and picking on the first pitch, he drove the ball over the garden wall and everybody went home, including the fans.

Burleigh Grimes and Vic Sorrell were on the mound at the start of the game. Grimes worked six rounds before making way for Fussell, who was fine until the last round. Van Gilder was on the rubber for the Tigers when the Pirates rode to victory.

Besides starring afield, Young Bartell was a batting ace with three pretty hits. He spoiled two Tiger hits by his fast fielding. Capt. Traynor again saw the game from the sidelines and Pie remained in Fort Worth for further treatment.

Steve Swetonic is scheduled to work on the mound for the Pirates this afternoon.

Huntington Elks Win Pin Honors

ST. LOUIS, April 6.—(AP.)—Elks Lodge No. 513, of Huntington, W. Va., carried off the day's honors in the twelfth annual Elks' national bowling tournament here yesterday.

F. Biagi was the big gun, grabbing first place in the all-events with 1,854, toppling 578 in the five-men, 649 in the doubles and 627 in the singles. His singles score gave him sixth place, while his doubles count paired with A. J. Baxter, former president of the American Bowling Congress, also was good for sixth. Their score was 1,198.

Other doubles leaders included W. Nagle and E. Shepard, eighth place, with 1,177; J. Biagi and C. Ridgeley, ninth, with 1,166. The Huntington lodge team crashed 2,842 pins in the five-men event to take second place.

ED JUDY ROLLS 725 IN A. B. C.

CHICAGO, April 6.—(AP.)—What seemed to be the most invulnerable lead in the championship events of the American Bowling Congress tournament fell yesterday as Ed Judy, of Chicago, toppled 725 pins to grab first place in the singles.

Jeff Davis and Eddie Krems, another pair of Chicago keglers, had been deadlocked for the lead in this event for a week and it was generally agreed they would divide first money until Judy got into action.

Judy started off with 11 straight strikes, but lost his great chance for a perfect score when the No. 6 pin refused to fall on his last shot. The 299 score, which has been duplicated only once during this tournament, gave him a big chance, however, and he made the most of it, bagging counts of 215 and 211 in his next two games.

Adding his singles score to the 644 he rolled in the five-men event and his 579 in the doubles, Judy also went into second place in the all events with a 1,948 total. Otto Stein, Jr., of St. Louis, is the leader in this event with a 1,974 total.

Judy's activity was the only jarring note to the 10 leaders in each event. Others threatened in the doubles and all events only to fall shy by several pins of entering the select circle.

William Lutsch, of Chicago, upset 695 pins in the second best singles score of the day, but failed to land among the leaders.

Foebe Rankin and Bjorn Peterson, another Chicago duo, cracked 1,268 maples in the doubles to lead the day's field, but they were several pins shy of the leaders. W. Klecz and P. Butler, of Chicago, top the field in this competition with 1,353 pins.

The Hub Recreations of Joliet, Ill., still lead in the five-men event with 3,063 pins.

RUTH SLAMS FIRST HOMER; YANKS WIN

DALLAS, April 6.—(AP.)—Babe Ruth's home run, his first of the training season, gave the Yankees a decision over the Dallas Steers of the Texas League in an exhibition game here yesterday by 12 to 11. The Babe's blow was delivered at the expense of Schuman in the eighth with nobody on base. The teams were deadlocked at 11 to 11 after having displayed all sorts of baseball—except good.

Lou Gehrig and John Grabowski also hit for the circuit, both in the third inning, when the Yanks scored eight times and each with two men on base. Charles Barnabe, former White Sox pitcher, was on the mound.

RED SOX WIN, 19-2

NORFOLK, Va., April 6.—(AP.)—The Boston Americans overwhelmed the New Haven Eastern League club here yesterday afternoon, 19 to 2. Scarritt, Stannard and Ruffing, of the Red Sox, hit home runs. Bruce Caldwell made two of the five New Haven hits.

CHISOX TOP WICHITA

CUBS TRIM HOUSTON

HOUSTON, Tex., April 6.—(AP.)—Charlie Root flashed great form, pitching the Cubs to an 8-to-3 victory over Houston in their second exhibition game here yesterday.

Root worked seven innings and allowed only one run. Pat Malone relieved him and netted enough hits to give Houston two runs in the ninth. The Cubs put the game on ice in their half of the ninth with four runs.

Cochran Wins Two; Evens Cue Series

NEW YORK, April 6.—(AP.)—Welker Cochran, of Hollywood, evened up his 12-block 18.2 balkline billiards match with Felix Grange, of France, by taking both of the 300-point blocks yesterday. Each now has won five blocks.

The afternoon block Cochran won, 300 to 189, in nine innings. His high run was 84. Grange's 66. Last night Cochran ran out the block in five innings, 300 to 45. He closed out the block with an unfinished run of 270. Grange's best cluster was one of 42.

REIGH COUNT BEATEN IN LINGFIELD

LINGFIELD, Eng., April 6.—(INS.)—Square Rock galloped home to win the Lingfield $5,000 race here today.

Cabalerro finished second, and Yoho third.

The American horse, Reigh Count started a strong favorite, but failed to place in the money.

It was the American colt's first appearance on a British race course, and sporting writers and the racing fraternity generally had believed that in view of Reigh Count's American record, including his Kentucky Derby victory, that he had better than an even chance to carry off the honors today.

Reigh Count finished eleventh in a field of 25.

Mon. Valley School Body Confab Today

FAIRMONT, W. Va., April 6.—(AP.)—Representatives from more than a score of school in Northern West Virginia will be here today for the annual spring meeting of the Monongahela Valley High School Athletic Association.

A proposal to form a sectional basketball league and to do away with sectional tournaments as a means of selecting the teams for the state tournament, will be presented. The discussion of the latter proposal is expected to evoke considerable debate. Several similar suggestions in the past have been defeatd.

SALO LEADS EAST-WEST RUNNERS

BALTIMORE, April 6.—(AP.)—Covering the 44 miles between Havre de Grace and Baltimore in 5 hours, 38 minutes and 25 seconds, Pete Gavuzzi, 30, from Southampton, England, yesterday won the sixth lap of C. C. Pyle's annual trans-continental marathon. He called for his pipe as soon as he crossed the finish line. He was followed 18 minutes later by John Salo, Passaic, N. J., policeman, who finished second in the 1928 race and Guisto Umek from Italy. Salo and Umek tied for second place.

Ed Gardner, Negro, of Seattle, although finishing ninth in the day's lap, is in second place in the race.

Fifty-six answered the roll call yesterday morning. The race started in the rain and cold. The skies cleared shortly before noon and the finish was in the hottest weather encountered so far.

At the start of the day's race, Salo overcame the six-minute lead held by Hedeman and finished the race two hours ahead of him. Salo now leads. The first 15 runners and elapsed time follow:

Harry Fay Visits In Brownsville

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., April 6.—Harry Fay, Charleroi heavyweight, and a survivor of the ill-fated Ventris, visited here yesterday, fresh from a boxing tour through South America. He was en route to South America when the Ventris sank. He reports that South American cities are not the most lucrative fields for a boxer. He left here for New York.

MANLEY NAMED GOLF PRO AT MONTOUR

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

I understand that Johnny Manley, first assistant professional to Jack Oke at the Highland Country Club for the last couple of years, has left the assistant professional ranks altogether.

Yesterday I noted that he had broken his engagement as assistant professional to Jimmy O'Donnell at the Edgewood Country Club, but it was not until today that I learned definitely he had been signed as the regular club professional to succeed Cecil Barber at the Montour Heights Country Club.

SUCCEEDS BARBER

Johnny was engaged by E. V. Hays, president of Montour Heights, another of the popular members of the district political golf family, as it were. Hays, like a number of other golfers, has watched Manley work, and found in him superb qualities as an instructor. Members of the Coraopolis club will find in Johnny a capable, willing professional, possibly a trifle modest, but nevertheless the type of man on the job they most desire.

What has happened to Cecil Barber still remains something of a mystery. He left Pup's Foot several years ago to take up the duties left vacant by Fred Baroni at Montour and was thought to have been well satisfied, as well as the members, last year. No doubt he has taken advantage of a more lucrative offer.

Johnny Manley is a younger brother of Tommy Manley, by the way, who was professional at East Liverpool Country Club.

NO GOLF AT SCHENLEY

I had a sneaking idea (whatever kind you may call that) that Schenley Park's municipal links wouldn't be opened on schedule—said schedule naming today as the big moment. And now Al McBride has set April 15 as the next possible opening date. A few more heavy rains, and the opening will happen, as usual, around May 1. On one occasion, officials were forced to keep it closed until almost May 15 because of the condition of the course, which, at this time, is soggy and wet and hardly desirable as a playing ground.

Indiana Coach Designs New Football

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., April 6.—(AP.)—Pat Page, Indiana University football coach, has designed a new type of football that is being used in spring practice by the Crimson squad. The ball has a surface that is entirely convex and and only 12 pounds of air pressure will inflate it. The players say it is ideal.

Page developed the ball, following discussion at the intercollegiate rules committee over the standard ball. Those used in past seasons were said to have been too pointed for accurate punting and passing.

in the six-round semi-final. Vivio had Murray in a bad way from a hard right cross to the head in the third round, but Jackie rallied from the effects and went on to add to his early lead.

Frank Monroe, the veteran slugger, of Fair Haven, 167½, was too experienced and too good a punch for young Billy Dacey, of the Hill, 164, and Referee Keally stopped their bout just as the bell sounded the end of the second round. Decey had won the opening round, but was down twice for the count of nine and fell into the ropes once and then went down again before hostilities were stopped in the next frame.

Johnny Michaels, formerly of Jamestown, N. Y., then of the Hill, then of Swissvale, and now of the North Side, defeated Johnny Smackey, of Canonsburg, in the six-round opener, despite a strong rally by Smackey in the last round, but the judges couldn't see it that way and voted Smackey the winner. The referee's vote, which didn't count, went to Michaels. Both weighed 135 pounds.

Joe Keally refereed all of the bouts and the judges were Frank Brown and Jock Simco, Bill Schuster, of Beechview, made his debut as an announcer and went over well. The warm weather kept away a number of fans, there being many vacant seats in the downstairs part of the auditorium.

MILTON TO BOX RODGERS

Promoter Francis Flynn announced after last night's show that he has secured Tommy Milton, of New York, to meet Jackie Rodgers, of the North Side, in the 10-round windup of next Friday night's show in the Moose Temple. Milton will take the place of Willie Davies, who will be unable to appear because his bout with Midget Wolgast at the Jolly Bowl in New Castle he has been set back to the following Monday night.

Milton is a veteran among the little fellows. He has boxed Tony Canzoneri, Vic Burrone, Al Brown, Lew Perfetti and other notables.

Kid Crutchfield, veteran local Negro light-heavyweight, will be one of the principals in the Moose Temple semi-final.

Entries close tonight for the open amateur boxing tournament to be held in the McKeesport arena next Wednesday and Thursday nights.

Original Celtics Beat Rennaissance

NEW YORK, April 6.—(INS.)—Twelve thousand persons, the largest crowd that ever witnessed a professional basketball game in New York, saw the reorganized Original Celtics defeat the Renaissance Five, Negro champions, by a score of 38 to 31, here last night. Holman, Dehnert, Lapchick, Banks, Barry and Beckman played for the Celtics, Holman being high scorer with 15 points.

Harry Felix Beats Mueller at Erie

ERIE, Pa., April 6.—Harry Felix, of Brooklyn, boxed his way to a decisive victory over Freddie Mueller, of Buffalo, in their 10-round bout here last night. Mueller was outclassed the entire route. Hitting accurately, timely and highly effectively, and combining with it a defense that had Mueller completely stopped, the Brooklyn boy took nine of the 10 rounds.

NEW YORK A. C. COPS NATIONAL SWIM TITLE

NEW YORK, April 6.—(AP.)—By virtue of a victory in the water polo championship last night, the New York A. C. won the team title in the National A. A. U. indoor swimming championships. The New York A. C. defeated last year's champions, Illinois A. C., 5 to 3, to gain the 15 points awarded to the water polo victor. With 16 points scored in the events of three previous days, N. Y. A. C. gained a total of 31 points.

SPENCE COPS

The individual winner, Walter Spence, of Philadelphia, competing unattached, outscored many larger teams to stand second in the total scoring. His unexpected victory in the 500-yard free-style swim gave him a total of 19 points. Spence, who seldom swims that distance, turned in a fine performance to beat out Austin Clapp, Stanford University star, by two feet. His rival for individual honors, Walter Laufer, of Lake Shore A. C., Chicago, was third.

By this third place and second in the 150-yard back-stroke, Laufer brought his total up to 17 points, giving his club third place in the team standing. The back-stroke title went according to form to George Kojac, Rutgers star, competing for the New York Boys' Club.

NEW WORLD RECORD

Kojac took his favorite event in world record time, 1 minute 39 seconds, beating his old mark by 4-5 second. Laufer barely beat out George Eissler, of the New York A. C., for second.

Micky Riley Galitzen, young Los Angeles A. C. star, repeated his low-board diving victory in the event from the 10-foot springboard. He scored 146.59 points, while his teammate, Harold (Dutch) Smith, took second place with 138.97. Herman Ringler, of the Penn A. C., Philadelphia, took third with 131.55 points.

Long's Sport Comment

pressed the opinion that there would be no midway pair in the big show this year to excel the Quaker duo.

EARLY observers wondered how Thompson had managed to get into his mid-season stride in the first stages of spring. In one game he accepted 17 chances without a slip, and in another game against the Robins he and Thevenow handled 25 chances between them. The answer was Thevenow. He was pulling Thompson along and speeding up his play by his own great work.

It was something after the manner in which Johnny Evers took on a new lease of life after he went to second base for the Braves in 1914 to play alongside Rabbit Maranville, only in this case Thompson, instead of being a veteran like Evers, was learning something new besides being livened up and being kept on his toes. Thompson will not be the same second baseman playing alongside a less capable shortstop during the absence of Thevenow, and one of the best-looking infields in the league is all shot.

WHILE getting ready for the opening of spring football practice next Monday, Carnegie Tech is also stirring in track and field athletics, and present signs are that the Skibos will have a team that will compare favorably in many respects with the best in the district.

Dave Bancroft

One boy who will bear watching is Ralph Merton, formerly of Westinghouse High School, who is expected to be one of the leading pole vaulters in the tri-state region. He averages 12 feet without difficulty, and is also a high jumper of no mean ability. Merton stands 6 feet 3 inches in height and weighs 160 pounds.

LAST year Dave Bancroft hit only .250 and the experts said he was done. This spring he has amazed them by coming back and slamming the ball all over Dixie with such every-day consistency that Manager Robinson would have been compelled to find a place for him on the Brooklyn team at the start of the season even if Glenn Wright's injury had not left the shortstop position open. No one has been able to explain the transformation. Bancroft himself attributes it to change in his batting style. "I guess I'm as greatly surprised as any one else," Banny says. "I've been hitting well this spring because I've changed back to a batting style that I haven't employed since I played for the Giants years ago.

"I SUPPOSE my failing off last season was due to the fact that I was trying to be too darned scientific. I'd shuffle around with my feet at the plate, try to run in to meet a curve ball before it broke, and I also attempted to place every base hit to the right or left side of the diamond.

"But this year, I'm trying to be a slugger. At the plate I've planted my feet firmly on the ground, and taken my full, free cut at the ball. I neither know nor care where the ball goes after I hit it. And the result is that I've been hitting the ball harder, than I did at any time last season. Also a goodly percentage of the balls I hit have dropped safely, which is most gratifying to me."

IT may be only a synthetic title that he holds, but it strikes the average fistic fan that Tod Morgan is a far greater credit to the boxing game as junior lightweight champion than are some of the leaders of the more "regular" classes. Morgan not only has held his crown longer than the present king of any other division of the glove sport, but, what is more, he has never tried to dodge defendingit. His latest success under that heading, his victory over Santiago Zorilla in Los Angeles, Thursday night, is only another addition to a long list.

Since he won his title from Mike Ballerino back in 1925, Tod has fought Cannonball Martin twice, Joe Glick twice, Johnny Dundee, Phil McGraw, Wildcat Carter, Jimmy Goodrich, Eddie Brady, Steve Sullivan, Carl Duane, Richard King, Jimmy Duffy, Stanislaus Loyaza and every other worthy challenger who came along. He has set a splendid example for some of the champions in the more pretentious classes.

Pete Latzo

YOU do not often hear of a prominent fighter's quitting the roped square to play professional baseball, but that's the strange role in which you will find Pete Latzo, former welterweight champion, this spring and summer. It isn't exactly a matter of choice with Latzo. His left jaw was broken by one of James J. Braddock's wallops last November and the doctors advised him to stay out of the fight game this summer in order to give the jaw plenty of rest. So Pete went back to baseball, which he had played before entering the ring. At first he planned to try for a job with the strong Newark (N. J.) club of the International League, but he wasn't quite fast enough for that company, so he has signed with the Binghamton (N. Y.) club and will play third base for that team. It is said that Latzo might have become a big leaguer before now if he had not quit the diamond because he thought he saw more money in the ring.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Slip — Wall Street Quotations

MARKET MOVES IRREGULARLY LOWER

NEW YORK, April 6.—(AP.)—Stock prices moved irregularly lower at the opening of today's market. Early declines of a point or so were recorded by American Can, Chrysler, Missouri-Kansas-Texas common, Postum and Warner Bros. Bethlehem Steel opened a point higher. U. S. Steel common and General Motors yielded fractionally.

Predictions of another "money squeeze" around the 15th of the month, when heavy dividend, interest and state income tax payments come due, stimulated the early selling movement. Although more than a dozen "pools" were reported to be under organization, there was little evidence of any concerted buying operations in the market.

Suggestions of commission houses that traders lighten their speculative holdings, and that there is little possibility of a sustained upward movement at this time in view of the Federal Reserve policy, brought heavy selling into such issues as Wright Aeronautical, Packard Motors, Radio, Anaconda, Montgomery Ward and Advance Rumely, which quickly sold down 2 to 4 points.

United States Steel common, which rose briskly in the early part of yesterday's session and then turned reactionary, was again under pressure, quickly dropping 2 points. Republic, Vanadium and Superior steels also fell back a point or so.

There were a few exceptions. Kinney was marked up 2 points to a new high at 70 and a few other issues, such as New York Central, General Electric, American Safety Razor and American Express, pointed upward in the early trading.

Foreign exchanges opened steady, with sterling cables unchanged at $4.85⅝.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, April 6.—General selling and much lower prices came about in the wheat market today as a result of widespread rains and snow in the Canadian northwest. Numerous standing orders to sell out at various fixed limits were forced into execution by the drop in values. Opening ½@1⅛c off, wheat later showed some additional setback. Corn, oats and provisions were also easier, with corn starting ¼@⅞c down, but subsequently holding near to the initial figures.

The following quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by A. E. Masten & Co.:

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, April 6.—Cotton opened steady today at a decline of 2 to 13 points under selling promoted by continued easiness in Liverpool and reports of favorable weather in the South. July eased off to 19.90c and December to 19.89c, but offerings were comparatively light and the market steadied up on covering for over the week-end. At the end of the first half hour prices showed rallies of 3 or 4 points from the lowest on most positions.

Private cables said continental buying had been curbed by local and American selling. Liverpool, but that there was improved inquiry for cotton cloths from India.

Cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was at 112,000 bales, against 93,000 last year. Sales of fertilizer tags in 13 southern states in March were reported to have been 2.9 per cent less than last year, and for the four months, December-March, 14.2 per cent less than last year.

Which Are Abler, Reserve Board Men or Big Bankers?

—By B. C. FORBES—

WHICH are abler, the members of the Federal Reserve Board at Washington, or the responsible heads of the largest banks in America?

In the open market, whose services would command the higher price, the Reserve Board members or such men as Charles E. Mitchell, head of the country's largest financial institution; Albert H. Wiggin, head of the billion-and-a-half Chase National Bank; William C. Potter, head of the mammoth Guaranty Trust Company; Melvin A. Traylor, George M. Reynolds, Walter W. Head, of Chicago, and the foremost bankers in Philadelphia, Boston, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Detroit, New Orleans, St. Louis, etc?

The members of the Federal Reserve Board, conscientious and estimable gentlemen, would be the first to admit that their banking achievements never equalled those other men's.

This being so, the board members are likely to think twice before telling the ablest bankers in America that they don't know their business, that they should not have done this and that they should have done the other thing. Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, in his outburst against Mr. Mitchell for preventing a panic, declared vehemently that Mr. Mitchell had violated his oath of office as a class A director of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. There was no such oath. Mitchell was not chosen by the Federal Reserve Board, but by his fellow bankers in the New York district. Were Washington officials to attempt to throw him off the board, those who elected him doubtless would have something to say.

In Britain when a banking giant takes courageous action to check threatened banking disturbance, he is knighted. Washington's idea apparently is that he should be indicted.

THE main thing to keep in mind is the well-being of the 99 per cent ordinary folks throughout the country. Keeping them in mind, it is important that nothing be done to stop prosperity, which means employment and good wages. To keep everybody busy is of more importance than to keep Wall Street strictly reined. The only legitimate reason under the sun for the Federal Reserve Board, or anybody else, to attempt to quiet down speculation would be to prevent excesses from reaching limits dangerous to the stability of industry and business and employment. A stock market panic would hurt, not help.

Speculation has cooled considerably during recent weeks. The desired objective should be obtainable without bringing on a financial upheaval disastrous to general prosperity.

WASHINGTON did not this week pour oil on the troubled oil industry, but cold water rather. But our oil leaders, men of unusual brains, probably will find a way to modify the too-long-endured chaos. Good oil shares still look as attractive as any group in the whole market.

SECRETARY MELLON'S advice to buy bonds rather than stock has, thus far, proved sound. The veteran Pittsburgh banker, over a long lifetime, has proved himself no mean judge of securities. The Mellon family and the Fisher family, of Detroit, have been coming to the front most impressively, even though they usually keep their activities as much as possible in the background.

"I'M so glad I let up before I had to," remarked a middle-aged friend when I recently paid a flying visit to Palm Beach. "Have you seen —— being wheeled around in his invalid chair? You know, I suppose, that —— also is a total wreck? The number of cripples I have seen here this season makes me feel that some of our supposedly biggest men are the biggest fools in the country. They're killing themselves. The wives of some of them have managed to get them down here for a very brief visit, but, my heavens, they are just bundles of nerves. They can't relax. They chase excitement day and night.

"I've earned enough to keep my family very comfortably and to give them a start in life. Why should I kill myself trying to make more money? I worked hard enough for what I've got and I'm satisfied to let younger men have their turn. Johnny Raskob has been down here for quite a while taking things easy and he's probably wiser than some of those who can't understand how he can get out of the game for a while."

EVEN though popular stocks have tumbled rather badly, there is no assurance yet that they have touched bottom. When customers used to clamor excitedly to buy stocks, old Henry Clews would appear in his crowded customers' room and paste up this notice: "Remember gentlemen, that the stock exchange will be open again tomorrow from 10 to 3 and every day thereafter."

DRY LAW HELD TYRANNY BY DARROW

CHICAGO, April 6.—Clarence S. Darrow, Chicago's picturesque champion of human rights, has assailed national prohibition as being "masked by hypocrisy, bigotry and insincerity."

Reviewing the time-old struggle of liberty against tyranny, Mr. Darrow compared the mandate against the drinking of liquor with the ancient laws against witchcraft and in suppression of religions differing from those of the tyrants.

Astute lawyer that he is, Darrow declared that no insuperable difficulties prevent the abrogation of prohibition.

CONGRESS HOLDS POWER

"All that the Eighteenth Amendment does is to give Congress the right to act, and Congress can act or not as it sees fit," Mr. Darrow explains.

"No constitutional amendment enforces itself. The Eighteenth Amendment, like all the others, winds up with a clause declaring Congress shall have power to enforce this amendment by appropriate legislation. The Eighteenth Amendment has no force except as legislated by Congress.

"Congress can repeal the Volstead act as it sees fit and every lawyer knows it. Congress has complete power to pass any kind of act or no kind of act permitted by the Eighteenth Amendment and even the prohibitionists who are intelligent know that.

TERMS ACT ABSURD

"The Volstead act does not even conform to the Eighteenth Amendment, which simply authorizes Congress to pass laws and the states to do what they could do without the law—to forbid the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors as beverages.

"On top of that, Congress passes a law defining a beverage containing one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol by volume as intoxicating. Everyone knows that is absurd. You might as well declare rainwater intoxicating as one-half of 1 per cent. That means a teaspoon of alcohol to a quart of beverage. Why, you would have a stomach like a railway water tank to drink enough to get intoxicated!

"There is much hypocrisy and ignorance in regard to our attitude to enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment because it is part of the Constitution. There are at least three other amendments not effectively enforced. Two of these provide for the rights of the Negro to vote and enjoy all civil rights. One amendment provides that where part of the population is not permitted to vote, the representation in Congress should be reduced. But no law has been passed to carry it out.

HOLDS LAW TYRANNY

"The Constitution provides for reapportionment of Congress every 10 years. But it is 20 years since we have had any reapportionment. The prohibitionists are responsible because they fear the increased power of the cities and the decreased power of the country districts where prohibition thrives.

"Prohibition has been marked by hypocrisy, bigotry and insincerity. No criminal statute can ever be enforced unless the thing characterized as a crime is recognized by the great mass of people as wrong. Not over 60 per cent, and probably not over 50 per cent, recognize drinking liquor as intentionally wrong. If you figure them as they drink, not over 10 per cent consider it wrong. The law is not believed by 40 per cent of the people!

"The effort to enforce prohibition is not an effort to enforce law, but to tyrannize and browbeat and intimidate practically half the people who do not believe in any such law.

"It is just as reasonable to pass a law compelling prohibitionists to drink.

CITES CRIME AND GRAFT

"Prohibition has produced crime, filled our prisons, been responsible for numberless murders and resulted in graft and corruption—because it is impossible to have prohibition agents who are honest. It is an unwarrantable interference with freedom.

"The first concern of government is to protect the individual in his liberty to do things he wishes to do that are not in the nature of criminal acts.

"I am doubtful if any man of ability through the ages has ever been a prohibitionist. The thinkers, writers and poets and great religious teachers, including Jesus, have always thought it perfectly right to drink intoxicating liquors.

"A certain amount of intoxication is probably necessary to any high form of activity or art. Imagine any man writing a poem on ice water! It has never been done.

"Whether prohibition is got rid of as we once got rid of witchcraft, different forms of religious persecution and heresy, or whether our people have the decency to disregard or to repeal the Volstead act I cannot tell. But undoubtedly we will get rid of it in one or all of these ways."

7 Rules for $25,000 Temperance Contest

The purpose of the contest is to obtain a practicable plan, as a substitute for prohibition, which will secure better actual temperance conditions, which will be more easily possible of enforcement by state and Federal authorities, which will offer less encouragement to crime and tend less to debauch the public service, and which will not so outrage and violate the fundamental rights and personal liberties of American citizens.

The rules and conditions of the contest are simple and are as follows:

1—Every person is entitled to enter the contest, but no one person may submit more than one plan.

2—The practicable plan proposed as a substitute for prohibition must be set forth in an article containing not more than 1,000 words.

3—This contest will close April 30, 1929, and no plan which has not been mailed and postmarked on or before that date will be considered.

4—The articles submitted in the contest will be judged by a committee of eminent Americans, the personnel of the committee to be announced at a later date.

5—The full prize of $25,000 will be awarded to the contestant submitting the best plan as a practical temperance substitute for prohibition.

6—If other plans not awarded the first prize shall still be considered worthy of some compensation by the committee, a second prize of $5,000 and other prizes of $1,000 each may be awarded.

7—Articles submitting a plan to be considered in this contest may be sent to the temperance contest committee, care of the editor of any one of the following Hearst newspapers: Albany Times-Union, Atlanta Georgian, Baltimore News, Boston Evening American, Chicago Herald and Examiner, Detroit Times, Los Angeles Examiner, New York American, Omaha Bee-News, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Rochester Journal, San Antonio Light, San Francisco Examiner, Syracuse Journal, Seattle Post-Intelligencer, Washington Herald, Wisconsin News (Milwaukee).

DIVORCE DENIED HUSBAND

Judge James H. Gray, of Common Pleas Court, has denied Francis J. Creighton, motorman, 207 Bigham street, a divorce from Louise A. "IN HONOR BOUND."

An interesting society comedy of husband, wife and friend. The husband being an eminent lawyer, believes in being "off with old love" before going on with new. Hence arise complications concerning a previous attachment of his wife. The husband proves to be in the right and matters are adjusted to the satisfaction of everyone.

Willard Mead will assume the role of the husband, Mae Sweeny the wife, Gerard MacAteer the friend, and Mary Hisrich his sweetheart.

FOSTER APPEAL ON RADIO

School children throughout the eastern part of the United States heard about the project to memorialize Stephen C. Foster by erecting a building in his honor on the Cathedral of Learning quadrangle through an address given yesterday by Dr. Walter Damrosch in his educational hour broadcast over the "Blue Network."

According to educational authorities, the reception of this hour is a regular feature in the schools of many cities. In his program, Dr. Damrosch told of the life of Foster, sang some of the composer's songs, and outlined the local memorial plan.

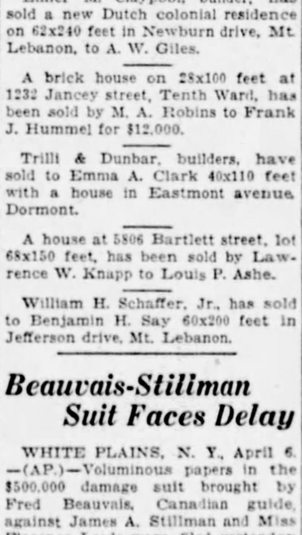
The Sun-Telegraph Fifteen Cent Pattern



A DAINTY FROCK FOR A TINY OT

Lines and plaits with attractive points form this pretty model. It is sleeveless, with just a suggestion of a tiny cap over the shoulder.

The plaits give comfortable fulness. Printed voile is here pictured. One could use dimity, batiste, taffeta or linen. Fagotting or piping at the long seams or stitchery will form a pretty finish on plain material. Crepe de chine in pastel colors is also suggested for this little dress.

The pattern is cut in 3 sizes: 2, 4 and 6 years. To make the dress in a 4-year size will require 1¼ yard of material 35 inches wide. To finish with narrow piping or bias binding at the long seams and points above the plaits, also at neck and armscye edges will require 3⅝ yards.

COUPON.

This pattern will be sent on receipt of 15 cents (silver or 2c and 1c stamps). Make number, name, address, etc., plain. Send to Pattern Department, The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE

NO EXPERT judge of the movies, I only know what I like. I have a fragrant memory for the "Birth of a Nation," "What Price Glory," and "The Big Parade," and to round out a quartet of fine things I mention without much fear of contradiction: "The Broadway Melody," at the Aldine.

The story of the same name, written by Jack Lait from the scenario, is now running in the Sun-Telegraph. It takes you into Tin Pan Alley, into the dressing room of the stage girl, into her theatrical hotel apartment and into her heart, and it seems here the author has missed nothing of importance and interest.

The song and dance man, the lecherous back-stage-friend of the producer, the writer of popular songs, the booking agent, the sister-act, and all the colorful stuff that goes to make us yokels stare and gape at theatrical people are all here in a colorful ensemble. Mr. Lait has descended to very little hokum.

Charles King, an old favorite of George Cohan productions, and one of the most personable men on the musical comedy stage, plays the leading role in a way that will cause former Hollywood stars to shiver for their safety.

I don't believe there's a sub-title in the whole picture. There is good dancing, adequate singing and good comedy. Just for good measure there is color photography.

The talkies are coming. There are still flaws and a few lisps, but the automobile in its early stage used to break down once in awhile.

IN THIS field of writing for the talkies the authors will learn with some sadness that they will have to be careful with emotional scenes. Movie audiences are a problem here. In the two biggest scenes in Broadway Melody, directed straight to sheer pathos, the audience laughs and chortles.

* * *

Buck Kearns, a local musician, was reminiscing the other day, and recalled that Jimmy Dougherty is the only Pittsburgh musician who ever chartered a special train to fill an engagement. Dougherty had an assignment in Brownsville, Pa., but lingered too long at the sandwich bar in the old Atlas Hotel in Sixth avenue, to make the regular train. He then engaged an engine and a coach, into which he and two other members of his cast rode to Brownsville. The fact that the train schedules in Brownsville at the time were known by all the citizenry caused no end of excitement when the special pulled into the station, out of which stepped three musicians who inquird grandly: "Where's the dance hall?"

THERE are many variations of stories dealing with what are known as "skulls," "slow ones," "Annie Oakleys," the "franking privilege," "a couple that are punched"—in short free passes to anything. I remember a young policeman, with a sense of humor, who upon his first Sunday after his appointment, opened his coat and revealed his badge to the man who was passing the plate in church.

Also, there was the prankish young fellow, who declined to lend the fellow sitting beside him a dime for the collection plate, but who "fixed" things by dropping in his own dime and holding up two fingers—paying for his friend also.

But best of all is the more or less recent story about George Bernard Shaw, who as a dramatic critic, was entitled to press passes to the London theaters. Mr. Shaw and two other boys from Fleet street were walking along what we Londoners always call the Mall one day when a beggar stopped them, asking for an offering. Mr. Shaw's two friends contributed a shilling or so, but Mr. Shaw, that rare and brilliant humorist, passed on without donating as he shouted: "Press."

FLOWER GARDEN SHOW PLANS COMPLETE

The East Liberty Chamber of Commerce with the cooperation of the Morningside Parent-Teacher Association and the Liberty School Parent-Teacher Association are sponsoring the second East Liberty Spring Flower Garden Party and Exhibit on April 12 and 13, in the East Liberty Y. M. C. A. auditorium, Whitfield street.

The morning sessions will be held at 10 o'clock while those of the afternoon and evening will start at 2 and 8:15 o'clock both Friday and Saturday.

NO CHARGE MADE

There will be no charge of any kind made, neither will there be anything for sale during the exhibit. All are welcome, including children. All members of Parent-Teacher Associations are doubly welcome and will find much of beauty and interest in the exhibits as well as an educational interest in the talks by the experts in charge.

"Plants on the Home Grounds," "Planting the Small Yard," "Elements of Community Attractiveness," "Landscape Architecture, Its Relation to the Layman," "The Part Cement Plays in Garden Use," and several other topics will be ably discussed by Profs. Kant and Bracken, landscape architects from Penn State College, and by Mr. Staub, of the cement industry.

Many beautiful plants and garden tools will be given as attendance prizes.

MANY EXHIBITORS

Exhibitors so far enrolled include Randolph-McClements Company, Zieger Company, Highland Floral Company, G. P. Weaklen Company, Graff Bros., Inc., Alpha Floral Company, Bartley Hardware Company, Pennsylvania Hardware and Paint Company and William P. Accetta.

At the Saturday afternoon meeting handbooks showing the use of cement by the home owner will be given away. This will prove a most instructive book to those wishing to try their hand at ornamental garden cement work.

Lantern slides will be used to illustrate most of the lectures.

This spring flower garden party will initiate the paint-up, clean-up, plant-up campaign for 1929 as well as being the starting gun for the yard and garden contests in the various districts surrounding East Liberty.

The Saturday morning program will be given by the nature study department of the Pittsburgh public schools. All school children are urged to attend this special children's party and exhibit.

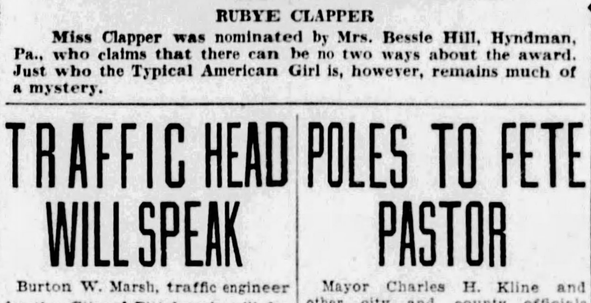
Nominated For Trip To Paris

JANE ANN HOFFMAN

Eighteen, 5 feet, 6 inches tall, 125 pounds, Miss Hoffman, Reynoldsville, Pa., has been made eligible for the award of a trip to Paris and the $5,000 prize.

OLIVE BROWN

"Miss Brown can do house work wonderfully well; she can cook—ooh! I'll say!—and play the piano; she has a good voice and is fond of welfare work." So says Miss Brown's nominator.



RUBYE CLAPPER

Miss Clapper was nominated by Mrs. Bessie Hill, Hyndman, Pa., who claims that there can be no two ways about the award. Just who the Typical American Girl is, however, remains much of a mystery.

FINAL DAY HERE FOR QUEST

Hurry—the Typical American Girl Quest ends tomorrow at midnight—hurry!

As a help to those who have not as yet sent their nomination to the Quest Editor, the following letter, from Mrs. U. G. Palmer, of Verona, is published:

"The Typical American Girl. Who is she?

"The Typical American Girl is that girl who embodies those qualities and characteristics that are common to American girlhood.

"She must be intelligent; know how to cope with the conditions and problems of modern life.

ATTRIBUTES SET FORTH

"The dumbbell is not a typical American.

"She must have a certain amount of style and know how to wear her clothes. The American working girl wears her cheap frock like a queen! The future queen of some man's home.

"She must be basically religious. If she smokes and drinks it will not be to excess, but merely to promote sociability, and the great majority of American girls do not smoke and drink.

"In addition to intelligence, style and religion, she may be athletic, beautiful and educated."

DECISION AWAITED

In a very few days, now, the Quest Editor will tell you whether Mrs. Palmer was right. Until that time, the decision shall rest in the hands of the judges.

But send in that nomination Now! At midnight tomorrow night, the contest closes, definitely and finally. Anyone may nominate any young lady other than herself—or himself. A picture and a good description of the girl's personality are all that is necessary.

The Quest Editor is expecting a number of last-minute nominations. Will one of them be yours?

TRAFFIC HEAD WILL SPEAK

Burton W. Marsh, traffic engineer for the City of Pittsburgh, will be the principal speaker at the regular monthly meeting of the Brookline Board of Trade in the Brookline Public School auditorium Monday evening. Mr. Marsh will discuss "Traffic."

GIVEN 2 YEARS IN KILLING

Special Policeman Walter C. Butler, 36, a Negro, of Carnegie, has been sentenced to from one to two years in jail, by Judge Joseph M. Swearingen, in Criminal Court, for voluntary manslaughter, in connection with the death of Russell Brooks, 25, Negro, of Broadway, Carnegie, on October 29 last.

Butler pleaded guilty generally to murder, and, after taking evidence to determine the degree of guilt, Judge Swearingen fixed it at voluntary manslaughter. RIVER HIGHWAY UPKEEP CAUSE OF PARLEY

Councils of the North Boroughs will hold a joint conference in Bellevue Borough Hall next Friday night to review the proposed agreement with the county on maintenance of the Ohio River boulevard.

Changes in the wording of the agreement are said to be desired by some of the councils, to clarify the respective obligations of the county and the boroughs, and uniform action is desired. The meeting was called by W. F. Cooley, president of Bellevue Council.

Emsworth Council at its monthly meeting Thursday night postponed final action on the boulevard route ordinance until a special meeting called for April 25. By that time, it is believed, any differences on maintenance will have been threshed out. A proposed amendment to the borough zoning ordinance will come up at that time.

The new building code was passed on second reading. Tax duplicates received from the county showed an increase of $75,000 in the taxable valuation of Emsworth over last year. The present figure is $2,676,000.

RADIO IN SCHOOL MOVE MEETS POPULAR APPROVAL

One of the first of the many responses to the Sun-Telegraph-Stanley-Warner-Brothers' Theaters' campaign to place a radio in every schoolroom has come from Violet M. Finch, a former pupil and a graduate of the Allen public school, Allen avenue, and South Side High School.

Violet M. Finch

"Learning of your laudable effort to place radios in every school," says Miss Finch, "I wish to be one of the first to send you an order for the Sun-Telegraph's delivery over a period of 13 weeks I want the order to be credited to the Allen School, Eighteenth Ward, of which I am a graduate."

FIRST TO SUBSCRIBE

Miss Finch's generous subscription followed close on the heels of a letter from City Councilman W. Y. English, which said:

"I am heartily in favor of this movement, as the installation of radio receiving sets in the classrooms of our schools would result in inestimable benefit to every community, as well as to the thousands of students individually. In addition to the great help to the pupils, the fulfillment of this idea would tend to increase community assemblies nightly, with resulting benefits to all sections of this municipality.

"We are only entering the beginning of great things for many thousands of people when we install radio in our school buildings. I hope the untiring efforts toward this will soon materialize."

The plan which Mr. English so enthusiastically indorses is by this time well known to every Pittsburgh resident.

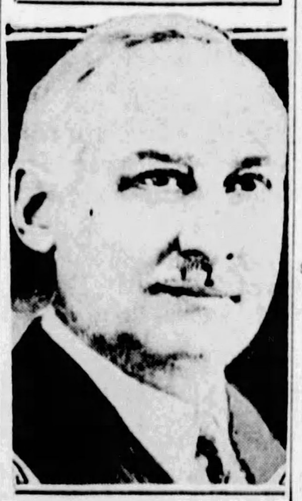
CAMPAIGN UNDER WAY

The Sun-Telegraph, working in conjunction with the Stanley-Warner Brothers' Theaters, has offered to install a radio receiving set in any schoolroom whose pupils have obtained 125 subscriptions for this newspaper. The set is an eight-tube number 35 Atwater Kent Electro-Dynamic, which is valued at $138.50. The installation will be immediate and complete.

In the public schools, a number of groups of students are already hard at work organizing for this campaign. These groups will be supplied with a speaker from the Sun-Telegraph upon request; he will talk to them in any suitable place outside the school, explain the details of the campaign and aid them in every possible way.

The campaign is already under way and every indication points to its rapid and satisfying success.

Favors Radio



W. Y. ENGLISH

City Councilman English today heartily indorses the movement to install radio sets in schoolrooms because installations "would result in inestimable benefit to every community.

Today's Flagism

This has been an important date in the brief history of the Stars and Stripes. On this day in 1789, the first Congress under the new constitution met and formally counted the electoral votes which named George Washington first President. The Battle of Shiloh, major engagement in the Civil War, was fought April 6, 1862, and on this date in 1909, Admiral Peary discovered the North Pole. The United States declared war against Germany on April 6, 1917, a struggle from which Old Glory emerged with new laurels.

Will Rogers in London

NEW YORK, April 6.

All the papers are quoting things from Mr. Coolidge's latest article, so explain this paragraph: "A strong group of the party in and outside the Senate made the mistake of undertaking to oppose Mr. Hoover with a large number of local candidates, which finally resulted in their not developing enough strength for any one candidate to impress the convention."

Why has it been considered a "mistake"?

Socially, everything is quiet along the Potomac. If we can just keep everybody from giving a dinner, we may get out of this yet.

The BROADWAY MELODY by Jack LAIT

Hank Sees the Torn $1,000 Note and Questions Queenie About It

(From a Scenario by Edmund Goulding.)

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Eddie Kerns, song plugger, has written the music for "The Broadway Melody," a big revue to be produced by the famous Zanfield. For two years Eddie has been engaged to "Hank" Mahoney and now he sees his way clear to marry her. She and her younger sister, Queene, are playing in vaudeville and Eddie summons them to New York and tells them he has managed to place them in the revue. They are overjoyed, but Eddie suddenly discovers that he's lost his heart to Queenie who has developed into a startling beauty in the two years since he saw her last. He keeps his secret from "Hank" and the girls turn down a long vaudeville contract for a chance to make good in the revue. Zannie, after seeing the "Mahoney Sisters" perform, decides that he could only use Queenie. She, however, appeals to him to also give her sister a chance in the show. He consents. "Hank" believes that she put it over. During a dress rehearsal Eddie shows the sisters the big ad in the newspaper announcing their coming to Broadway. When Hank kisses Eddie, Queenie cries. Zannie gives Queenie a place in the revue. She makes an impression and the two "angels" of the revue invite her out to dine after the show. Dore, one of the show girls, tells Queenie to watch her step with Worthington. Eddie questions Queenie about "Warry" and tells her to keep away from him. Ignoring Eddie's protest she goes out with Warriner. When "Hank" arrives home with Eddie she discovers Queenie in. The two "angels" are disappointed when Queenie wouldn't play their game.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XII.

QUEENIE MAHONEY lay in her bed, alone in the little suite at the Princeton Hotel. After Hank and Eddie had gone out for their snack following the happy discovery that she had not "gone out" with Francis Warriner, she lay awake thinking.

It had indeed been a historic day in her young life—the dress rehearsal with its reverses and triumphs, the meeting with Warry and Stewie Worthington, her break with Eddie in the dressing room, the consciousness that she was in love with him and the indications that he was with her, though he was engaged to her sister; the half of the $1,000 bill and what it symbolized, and even more frankly said, the dialogue between Eddie and Hank she overheard while they thought she was out with the millionaires—it was all very dizzying.

That she must tear out of her scheme of life any relations with Eddie, though he was gnawing at her heart, she was fully determined, and it hurt.

No, she couldn't repay all that Hank had done for her with such a shabby double-cross.

And it not only was dangerous, but painful, for her to remain one of a trio which was rapidly becoming a triangle.

Queenie had settled very few weighty perplexities for herself. Hank had already done the thinking for both of them. The girl had never known what it was to be in love before. She had seldom even indulged in frivolous approaches to it, as do most girls, especially those who are early thrown into the theatrical atmosphere.

In this crisis Hank was the last one on earth she could come to for counsel. She had no desire to "have it out" with Eddie, either, since there had been no spoken confessions of love between them, though each was wide awake to the acute situation.

She must fight out her battle alone this time. And it was no easy matter, especially since the Warriner business had complicated it so that if she took the least intricate expedient of trying to keep away from Hank and Eddie they would conclude that it was because of Warry. Moreover, how could she? She lived with Hank, always had; her sister would not easily let them separate.

Her work threw her with Hank, naturally, and Hank was always with Eddie when she wasn't with her and Eddie.

The Warriner intervention, which she had seized as an instrument for the first break that evening now threatened to be a millstone instead of a stepping stone.

She had no interest in Warriner whatsoever. The torn half of the "grand note," though it was more money than she had ever owned, she would have flipped off without a regret. If she had anything to do with Warry at all it would be to use him as a subterfuge to camouflage her real purpose in leaving Hank and Edide to themselves as far as possible.

As she lay there, turning over in her tired mind the first real problem she had ever wrestled with, there came a ring at the outer door. Hank hopped out of bed, stepped into mules and slipped on a kimono and answered. As she opened the door a bellboy, not in the uniform of the hotel, handed her a note. He refused a tip. She threw on the light and looked at the envelope. It bore the crest of a fashionable club, of which she had never even heard. It was addressed to her. She slit the cover and took out the contents.

The other half of the $1,000 bill fell to the floor as she unfolded the paper. She glanced first at the signature—Francis Warriner—then read:

"My dear, pretty child—

"I cannot get myself to accept your refusal of my invitation this evening as final.

"The attitude that your sister and the young man, perhaps, was an element against me.

"It is not my desire or intention to harass you with continuous overtures. But my tremendous fondness for you impels me to not surrender so easily, either.

"I will be at this club until 2 o'clock a. m., and if you want to be gracious you can telephone me here when you have read the note. It would please me profoundly if you would do so.

"In any event, a sweet good night and rosy dreams to the beautiful goddess of the love boat—my love boat.

"Sincerely,

"Francis Warriner, Jr."

Queenie picked up the missing half of the yellow-back. She got the other half crumpled from being in her hand and in her stocking, and matched the pieces. Then she held one in each hand and stood in thought—

H'm—$1,000! It surely was a fortune. She could buy many things she craved with it, things that she otherwise would not have dared honestly to hope for. But—would she? Should she?

Why not? She had made no promises, in truth she had refused the very simple offer to sup with Warry and Stewie, for which she was to be paid the grand amount. And yet he had sent it to her. It was a gift with no strings attached. He hadn't even mentioned it in his letter. It meant so little to him that he had entrusted the business end of it with a club boy.

It meant so little to him—and so much to her—now that she had it. A few minutes earlier, when she did not regard herself as having any part of it, she hadn't been in the least eager for it. Had she been, she could have earned it and a fine supper, besides, so easily. But now she owned $1,000. It was hers. No one could take it away from her.

She got the 'phone book and looked up the number of Warry's club and called it. He was paged and answered:

"Oh, this is fine of you," he said. "Did I wake you up?"

"No. I was in bed, but—that is, I wasn't asleep. I'm here all alone and——"

"What a pity. A lovely thing like you, all alone. You shouldn't be. You needn't be, you know——"

"Oh, my sister just went around the corner for a bite. She'll be in now any moment. If I hang up all of a sudden you'll know she came in—see?"

"Why Are you afraid of her? Doesn't she let you talk to anyone—or does she only forbid you to talk to me?"

"Well, I don't know. I never did a thing like this before—"

"Like what? Talk to a man on the wire?"

"A man—a man like you—that is, you understand—she thinks of me as a baby and when it suddenly hits her that I might go out with a man—without her—that is—"

"I understand. I'd like to treat you like a baby. But I don't see why she should. You're going to be the most admired girl on the American stage after the opening of 'Broadway Melody.' She'd better begin getting used to that and all that goes with it now. You see, I beat the curtain—my application's in ahead of the line . . . and does this call mean that it is being favorably acted upon?"

"H'm—I don't know about that—yet—what I wanted to say though was about that—you know, what you put in the envelope—"

"Don't waste golden time talking about that which you could use saying nice things to me . . ."

"But—I feel—kind of funny about it—"

"Nonsense. It's yours. No obligations. Whatever you decide to do, that is yours. Now—"

"But—Mr. Warriner—"

"Warry—to you—"

"Well, then, Mr. Warry—if I tell Hank about it she'll crown me. How can she believe girls get such things like I got this?"

"Why? Hasn't she any faith in you?"

"Sure. She never had any reason before this not to have, though. Hank is pretty wise, and the life we've lived ain't exactly the kind that gives you a whole lot of that faith stuff."

"Then don't tell her."

"But if I spend it, or any good part of it, she'll want to know where I got the dough. We bank our money joint."

"Now, that's a problem, honey, you'll have to settle for yourself. I can't give you very good advice as to your relations between you and your sister. But don't let it worry you. You'll find a way. In the meantime—what are you doing all day tomorrow?"

"Oh, we have to rehearse, and in the afternoon I take my tap dancing and stretching, and I have to get a water-wave and a trim, and—"

"Won't there be any free time? I mean—for me?"

"—I don't know—I—haven't talked to Hank yet about tomorrow—ouch—here she comes——"

And Queenie hung up and tried to look guileless.

Hank, surprised at seeing her out of bed, threw aside her hat and wrap and walked toward her. Something on the table caught her eye and stopped her. It stopped Queenie's heart, too—for Hank, with a puzzled expression, was picking up the two halves of the $1,000 bill.

"Queenie! What in great grief is this all about?" she exclaimed.

Queenie tried to clear her throat to laugh it off and find some ready alibi. She had never made a practice of lying to Hank. The blood flushed up in her face. She stuttered and stammered—

"That? Oh—that? H'm—oh, yes—isn't that a scream?"

"What do you mean—scream? This is a $1,000 note. Is it—on the level?"

Queenie saw an "out" in a flash.

"No—'course not—the phoney boloney—who'd you think'd give me a grand and why should it be torn in half?"

"Oh," sighed Hank, with relief. "Well, it's the best lookin' stage money I ever seen . . . come on, let's go eepy eepy—this has sure been one heck of a day, I'll tell the cock-eyed king o' the Checkopolacks."

Merely Margy, An Awfully Sweet Girl :-: Story by Lloyd Mayer :-: By John Held, Jr.

THE MORE I THINK ABOUT IT, THE MADDER I GET. THAT LITTLE MINX, GOING ROMANTIC ON OUR BULL! WORKING IT SO HE WILL RESCUE HER THEN MAKING HIM MARRY HER!
WE'VE GOT TO SAVE HIM FROM THIS. EVEN IF I HAVE TO MARRY BULL MYSELF!
HEH! WAIT A MINUTE!
YOU ARE ALREADY ENGAGED TO BASIL WEALTHINGTON! YOU CAN'T MARRY BOTH OF THEM. YOU KNOW, THEY PUT YOU IN JAIL FOR THAT!
ARAB IN A CASE LIKE THIS, WE HAVE GOT TO SACRIFICE OUR OWN AFFAIRS AND COME TO THE AID OF OUR TRUE FRIEND BULL!
THAT'S RIGHT!

"My dear, I'm ALL-of-a-DOOdah, no less—I mean I'm so MAD I could NIBble NOODles about this situation BULL'S involved himself in with this SEPtic little SHIMmy-fluffer, my dear, because he simply reFUses to EXtradite himself from her TOILS, my dear, and ARab and I've been FRENziedly trying to COPE with the idea of getting him OUT of the mess without the SLIGHTest EFfort on HIS part. GOSH, my dear, I COULDn't be more BAFfled and nonPLUSSED because as I told ARab I'd PRACticably marry Bull mySELF to save him from this cat because I HONestly think she's PERfectly FOUL and just got ROUND him, sort of, but ARab was too obNOXious about it, my dear, because he said I was engaged to BASil and I couldn't marry them BOTH because there was a LAW or something and they put you in JAIL for that—can you COPE with it? But I was NEVer more SErious about anything, my dear, because as I told Arab at a time like THIS you've GOT to make SACrifices for someone ELSE when they're an old FRIEND and all, and I can't help it if I AM engaged, my dear, I'd do ANYthing to save BULL from this unSCRUP'lous SHIMmy-fluffer, my dear, because I HONestly think you HAVE to sacrifice yourSELF for your FRIENDS in their HOUR of NEED or something, my dear—I mean I ACtually DO!"

Letty Learns Life By MARION M. MARKOWITZ Daily Short Story

LETTY BRISBANE had mysteriously disappeared. The last that was seen of her was the night of her twenty-first birthday party, three years after she made her bow into society. After the hilarious celebration, she vanished during the wee hours of the morning—unknown to her family or friends. Letty had set her plans sometime ago. She was sick and tired of being restricted and prohibited of every joy in life. She always did think her parents were extremely narrowminded and thus kept her within strict bounds.

Of course, the newspapers carried vivid headlines of all sorts such as:

Letty was hundreds of miles from home by this time—Wichita, Kansas. She has sufficient money with her to live on until she'd get herself a job. Even though she never lifted a finger in the way of menial labor, she was bound to seek employment.

Amid the throngs of humanity, all scurrying on their way, unheedingly, Letty joined the masses. At last she sensed a bit of freedom—away from the monotonous routine of social teas, luncheons, dignified dinner dances, and out of the conglomeration of human shams, always seeking to do everything for custom sake—always in artificial manner—never natural—free thinking men and women who really made up the world. Well, she would try and get the world on fire, yes, try, at least.

Several days later found Letty in the "Eveready News" office, being interviewed by the city editor. Even though she never had actual writing experience, she could feel within her the urge for excitement, and a reporter she would be—do or die. After pleading for a trial she was accepted on the temporary payroll and immediately life became rosy. In a strange city surrounded by strange people, a new era in Letty's life had begun.

In the meantime, Letty's parents had had detectives searching throughout the country, but their efforts were fruitless. They were gradually giving up hope. Now, when it was too late, they had come to the realization that they had been very selfish. If only they could find a trace of her—she would be forgiven of everything, and life for her would be made sublime. Yes, it was almost too late. Not a sign or word came to the Brisbane home for months and months.

Letty was making a name for herself—in print as well as in reputation. Her nom de plume was June Starck. Her stories were full of peppery details and elaborated the human side of life. Naturally, she was receiving merit right along and in a jiffy she rose to stardom in the journalistic world.

Click—click—click went the typewriter each evening when June's assignment was successfully carried out. She was pacing with Morgan Kennedy, the highlight of the reportorial staff. Yes, June would even go so far as to surpass him with her growing ability.

Then came her opportunity. It was between Morgan and June—who should interview the presiding speaker at the coming National Bankers' Convention to be held at Washington. Here's where June would set the world aflame. And then she would content herself with the feeling that she was an asset to humanity and not a liability.

"Well, Kennedy, I'm afraid Miss Starck beat you to it in the contest for the big story," stated the city editor in a downcast tone. "The girl sure has the brains—believe it or not—and she deserves this privilege."

You can just imagine June's face—aglow with enthusiasm and anxiety—when she heard the good news. Yes, a bewildered world sometimes, thought June—to think back just a year ago—Letty Brisbane—petted, spoiled and lavished daughter of the multi-millionaire—and now, a real somebody—a human figure making the world go round—a mental machine turning out what millions of eager eyes scan in the daily newspapers.

Of course June did not reveal her identity to a solitary soul since she disappeared from home and entered into the melting pot of the rough and ready laboring universe. She also disguised her appearance to such an extent that her photographs would not lead to her discovery.

So far she had not made future plans, but in the meantime, she would work for all she was worth, perhaps until she'd tire of it. She did not send word to her family of her whereabouts and wouldn't until she was good and ready.

The day came from Letty's assignment to Washington. What thrills were in store for her! She could hardly believe herself—but it was true, and she was off.

Washington. Letty was going to interview Mr. Clyde G. Sheridan, the nationally known financier and now presiding officer of the Bankers' convention.

But a telegram arrived several hours previous to the meeting, stating that Mr. Sheridan suddenly became seriously ill and therefore he would not be able to attend. It was a shock to all the members as well as to the public, who expected to listen to his speech over the radio.

And no one was more disappointed than Letty—her hopes utterly smashed and gone to pieces. But this was not final. An announcement was hurriedly made that another officer of the convention would take Mr. Sheridan's place. Well, though Letty, perhaps there will be something in it after all.

Letty prepared herself for the coming interview. Her mind was diligently working, pondering over the questions she would ask.

She entered the big office in the Convention Building and upon being ushered in, she became dumfounded.

"Dad!"

"Letty! My God! My baby girl!"

Both father and daughter, reunited, cried in each other's arms. Rapid explanations followed. There was no time for a newspaper interview, and Letty didn't care what this meant to her job. She had fully realized how much she missed home.

But there was another front page story, written by our Star Reporter—Miss June Starck, with the headlines: LETTY BRISBANE, THOUGHT KIDNAPED OR DEAD, FOUND IN WASHINGTON.

Coal Men of W. Va. To Fight Rate Cut

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., April 6.—(AP.)—The Monongahela Coal Operators' Association will take definite steps to combat the reduced freight rate on coal allowed the Pittsburgh district by the Interstate Commerce Commission early in the week, it was announced by J. M. G. Brown, president of the association, following a meeting yesterday. The nature of the action planned was not divulged, but it was said steps would be taken immediately. Members of the organization have termed the new rates to be "ruinous to this field."

The new rate, as promulgated by the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie and the Pennsylvania railroads, make a reduction of 15 cents a ton on coal from the Pittsburgh district to eastern markets and to tidewater ports for trans-shipment into New England and Eastern Canada. The new rate became effective on Thursday.

BUGS BAER Says

MAKING 'EM AND BREAKING 'EM.

"Bugs" Baer

THE law is a terrible thing on land and sea. Witness, being duly deposed and sworn, hereby testifies to the best of his knowledge.

Whereas, One U. S. Legislator having voted dry five times, was apprehended smuggling four bottles of good old schnapps into the United States.

He voted dry five times. He only smuggled four bottles.

Therefore, he has a vote left over for emergencies.

Verily, the dry plank is a greased pole and a snare forever.

Wine is a mocker and strong drink is raging. He, who is overcome thereby, shall inherit the works.

Corroboration makes irrefutable evidence, and irrefutable evidence makes somebody a liar.

Get yourself a good lawyer, my boy. When we say a good one, we mean one who needs only three more diplomas to become a druggist.

Do not trust yourself to the mimeographed morals of expert witnesses. The only trustworthy witness we ever saw was in a glass case in the Museum of Egyptology. And he was stuffed with bribes.

What makes the feathers all the lighter is that accused person also voted for the Jones Law with good intent.

His good intent was that he didn't intend to allow Jones to snare him.

The Jones Bill plasters you $10,000 for the first offense. And puts you in jail for five years so that there will be no second offense.

The worst kind of jury duty in the world is when you are standing in front of one.

There is justice for the high and low. But it is tough when you are caught in the middle.

The valves of our compassion flutter for the legislator who voted dry five times and belched wet once.

True, those four bottles were brought back from a tour of inspection of the Canal Zone.

But it seems the canal was the esophagus. And the inspection was less solid than liquid.

We do not know what will happen in this trial. It is a misdemeanor to hypothecate the law. All we know is that justice has been blind for centuries. Now it seems to have lost its sense of taste and has also acquired an ear ache.

Modern Weapons of Warfare Necessitate Creation of Department of National Defense to Protect Country

Reorganization of the executive departments is one of the most important tasks which President Hoover is expected to tackle soon after he gets the special session of Congress off his hands.

Such a reorganization can best begin with the co-ordination of the War and Navy departments under a single cabinet officer, as the Department of National Defense.

This country does not want war, but it does want defense from war. That is why we maintain the military and naval establishments. Their one and only purpose is to protect our people and our country from attack.

In these days we must defend not only our cities and our sea coasts but our farms and our factories far in the interior of the country.

As President Hoover well knows, there is no place in this country that will be safe from the bomb of an airplane, save as our air force is able to defend the country from an enemy air force.

It is not merely our coastal cities and towns that this new weapon of warfare menaces. The farmer's crops and farmhouses can be fired from the air as well as the city homes and shops and office buildings and the factories and their products in the warehouses.

Lives everywhere, in the event of war, will be sacrificed to poisonous gases. Devastation will be complete, and there will be no escape even in the mountain fastnesses from the ravages of airplane warfare.

Even the little petty warfare that is being carried on in Mexico today gives us a glimpse of what the airplane in war can and will do. How much greater would be the destruction of life and property if the fleets of airplanes which great nations are now building up should sweep across the United States from one ocean to the other.

Not only must the United States have a Department of National Defense, but it must have a modern department of the most modern national defense. The War Department and the Navy Department, as now organized, were doubtless good enough for 1829, but their organization will not do for 1929.

Fortunately President Hoover, who is formulating far-reaching plans to modernize the executive departments at Washington, is too eminent an engineer, too expert an organizer, too able an executive, and too efficient an administrator to overlook the most pressing item on such a program.

Co-ordination of the military and naval establishments under a Secretary of National Defense is the logical first step in the reorganization of the executive departments at Washington that is long overdue.

American business learned long ago that it pays to simplify administration, combine units, cut down overhead. And national defense is pre-eminently business, the most serious business in which a nation can engage.

Education by Radio Vast in Possibility

A Pittsburgh business man, commenting on the Sun-Telegraph campaign to put a radio in every schoolroom, said, "The far-reaching good to be accomplished and the real value of the radio in the education of our youth cannot be overestimated."

Recently a historic event took place in Washington—the inauguration of a new President. Two girls attending a private school here, where they have a radio, were observed on a street car, flushed with excitement on the morning of March 4. They, with members of all classes in the school, were going to hear history in the making because the school was going to "receive" the inauguration, including the speech of President Hoover, by radio.

Would they have been so eager and so interested had they merely contemplated learning history in the usual way—from a textbook?

The possibility of education by radio has a very wide range. In higher schools of learning the lecture is a preferred mode of instilling knowledge. The radio was made for that. A lecture would be an interesting interlude in textual study in every classroom. With all schools radio-equipped education by lecture could be made a regular feature in almost all grades as well as high schools.

The value of the radio in education is very great.

One Sure Sign of Spring Excels Robin and Circus

Spring is really here! We have the unfailing sign. The robin, where he is a veteran carrying the wisdom of age, is a pretty fair harbinger, but ornithological augury of balminess is not to be depended upon because the bird may be a bit balmy itself. There are so many young and immature robins, totally unwise to the ways of the weather. They came along with their optimism to delude us and we end by telling them it serves them right when their toes get frost-bitten.

But spring is really here now! We have the certain indication. The circus posters could deceive us. Often they have been just a day or two ahead of a belated blizzard. So we do not go by the robin or the circus poster or other signs of spring in announcing that spring is at hand. Ours is the surest sign of all.

The stubborn baseball hold-out has come into camp—Paul Waner has signed!

Honoring the Dead

Extravagance Does Not Do It.

Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick's new church, known in New York as "The Rockefeller Church," will install a mortuary chapel, where the dead may rest until relatives select an undertaker.

This is said to be "part of a drive against unscrupulous funeral directors who prey on bereaved families."

Something should be done to make the poor realize that they do not honor the dead when they impoverish themselves with ostentatious funerals, hiring unnecessary "mourning automobiles" that often go empty to the graveyard, and spending money they can't afford on flowers that the corpse does not see.

To show respect for the dead, do what the dead would want you to do. They would not want extravagance or waste.

Why Worry Now

Professor Says New Sun Will Take Present One's Place

Prof. Millikan, of the California Institute of Technology, removes one cause for nervousness in this worried world.

He tells us that the sun should shine for a billion years, and that, when it begins to dim, another sun will develop to take its place.

But it scarcely seems worth while to be concerned about that second sun. We really do not think we shall wait for it. Probably it will not seem as bright and warm as the sun we have been used to.

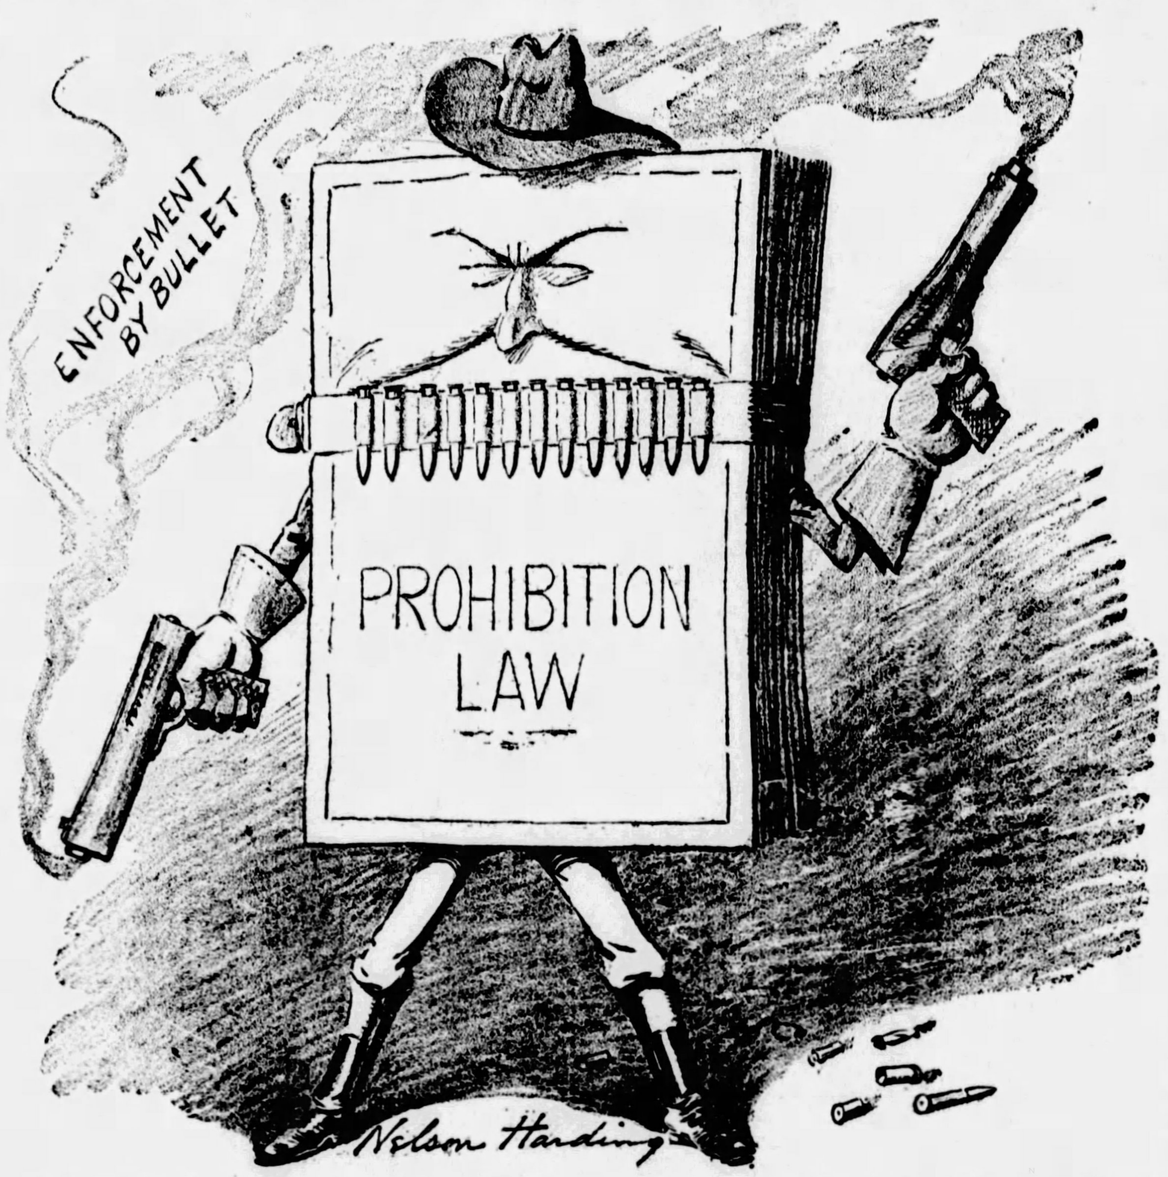
PUTTING TEETH IN IT

By Nelson Harding



Extreme drys' plea for a law with teeth seems to have been answered. This law shows a formidable set of teeth that bite through door panels, thick clothing, even the Bill of Rights; and their bite is worse than their bark.

Don't tell us that barking teeth never bite; these do.

But government methods are so notoriously wasteful that thousands of citizens are worrying about the threatened waste of costly ammunition by incompetent enforcement marksmen, while millions of citizens fear the bullets will not be wasted, but will hit the mark.

Still, we need not be surprised if dry agents become so expert with firearms that in blindfold tests they can tell by a sniff of powder smoke just what brand of cartridge they have fired; and perhaps they may endorse their favorite ammunition.

Many states have passed enabling legislation to further the "noble experiment," but what seems to be needed is an ennobling act, if such a measure would stand a chance in a dry Congress.

Tales That Are Told

A Fowl Affair

THE reckless motorist swerved and killed a fowl which darted across the road. An old woman who lived in a cottage near by was quickly on the scene. Her face was stern, her features hard and forbidding. Before she could utter a word, the motorist plunged a hand in his pocket and tendered her $5.

"Here by good woman," he said, practically, "this will square matters."

The sour face softened.

"It's good for you," she said. "Now I shall be able to start keeping fowls myself."

Not Far Enough

A STEEPLEJACK, working at the top of a high factory chimney, slipped and fell. Fortunately, he alighted on some bales of cotton-wool, and, though dazed, was unhurt.

The factory manager, who had been summoned to the scene, offered the man a glass of water. "Drink this," he said.

The steeplejack looked at the water and then at the chimney.

"H'm," he grunted. "I should like to know how far a man has got to fall before he gets something stronger than water!"

The Culprit

REGGIE had been punished by his father for allowing the garden roller to run into the greenhouse wall.

He sought consolation from his mother.

"Mummy," he asked, "did grandpa spank daddy when he was little?"

"Yes, dear."

"And did his daddy spank him?"

"Yes."

"Well," said Reggie, wearily, "who started this thing, anyway?"

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

IN looking through a copy of a magazine I came upon a picture that held me.

It was the picture of the model of a hand. The big, sinewy hand of a working man.

Toil had sculptured that hand. Great cords of struggle stood out upon it like steel cables. Streaming sweat had gouged grooves in it. The skin lay in limp folds about its powerful mechanism.

Beneath the arch of the hand were tunnels and buildings—things that had grown from that hand. But beneath one part of the hand there was only a deep emptiness, symbol of that dumb hunger which lies in the heart of the toiler.

The hand was modeled by Ber Coffet. He is a poor man, a hatmaker. He works until he has saved a little, then he withdraws to model in a rough studio he has built for himself. Nearly always he models the poor working people whom he loves and understands, for they are his kin.

I was deeply moved when I looked at that hand. I felt reverence and gratitude. It seemed to me that it should be placed in some fine niche in the Capitol at Washington. For it was that hand which made America.

We make a great fuss about artists and writers, actors and musicians, heroes and explorers, and other exceptional people. We act as if they were responsible for all the beauty and romance and adventures. They do contribute greatly. But the hand and the heart of the common working man contributes as greatly.

Beneath the sinewy arch of that calloused, sweaty hand, cathedrals spring to life—vast engineering projects have their being. AND WITHIN THE DUMB HUNGER OF THAT TOILING HEART STIR DREAMS OF POWER AND BEAUTY WHICH SOME DAY WILL COME TO THEIR HOUR OF BIRTH.

Remember that hunger. Respect those dreams. Do not make the common error of thinking that the cultured and the articulate have a monopoly on beauty. The hearts of the lowly also hold songs and marches and tall visions.

Thousands of letters come to this department every month. These letters contain glimpses of immortal truth and loveliness. They are not written in splendid words by great poets or philosophers. They are written by busy mechanics who push back the litter of the work bench to find room for the page.

They are written by tired mothers who snatch a minute while the baby sleeps or the stew boils. They are written in words as crude and sinewy as that sculptured hand—but those simple words carry on that deathless spark of divinity which God breathed into that first dumb mass of clay.

Think of that when next you lift your head to some white wonder thrust like a frozen fountain far into the sky—or watch the delicate, fierce span of some great bridge—or find yourself lost in the magic of immortal words. Be grateful, not only to the architect, the engineer, the writer—be grateful to the man who mixed the mortar, riveted the steel, set the type. Within their hands as great a miracle moved as within the brains of the designer. Within their hearts as deep a hunger stirred as gnawed at the soul of the artist. We are all part of the same source from which come all miracles and dreams.

Bible Passages

Wisdom Complaineth

(Proverbs 1: 20-33)

WISDOM crieth without she uttereth her voice in the streets:

She crieth in the chief place of concourse, in the openings of the gates: in the city she uttereth her words, saying,

How long, ye simple ones, will ye love simplicity? and the scorners delight in their scorning, and fools hate knowledge?

Turn you at my reproof: behold, I will pour out my spirit unto you, I will make known my words unto you.

Because I have called, and ye refused; I have stretched out my hand, and no man regarded;

But ye have set at nought all my counsel, and would none of my reproof:

I also will laugh at your calamity; I will mock when your fear cometh;

When your fear cometh as desolation, and your destruction cometh as a whirlwind; when distress and anguish cometh upon you.

Then shall they call upon me, but I will not answer; they shall seek me early, but they shall not find me:

For that they hated knowledge, and did not choose and fear the Lord:

They would none of my counsel: they despised all my reproof.

Therefore shall they eat of the fruit of their own way, and be filled with their own devices.

For the turning away of the simple shall slay them, and the prosperity of fools shall destroy them.

But whoso hearkeneth unto me shall dwell safely, and shall be quiet from fear of evil.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 6.—About the only material exhibit distinguishing the New York millionaire from the ordinary run of us heels these days is a yacht. And yet there are few spectacles so pathetic as this combination. Most of a yacht owner's time is spent trying to coax people aboard.

Yachts are for those with leisure. Few have time to slam down their desks and be off on a several weeks' cruise when the opportunity is offered. So the self-appointed commodores must roam the high seas alone save for members of their high-salaried entourage.

The upkeep of a first-class yacht is something even to give a millionaire a chill. Vincent Astor's, for instance, is said to set him back $2,000 a week just for ordinary running expenses. There are no lay-offs in port. A yacht crew must be maintained the year around.

Most of the owners are only able to corral guests for week-end trips during the summer, but the tremendous expense goes on and on. A California millionaire, who spent $350,000 for a yacht, discovered after a year he had used it but a total of 34 full days.

So he sold it for $200,000 and returned to his niblick. Nothing depreciates in value so quickly as a new yacht. The moment it is launched salable qualities shrink many thousands because of its construction for distinct individual requirements.

But for a pleasant purr of grandeur nothing tops a yacht. On it the millionaire becomes a supreme nabob—a monarch of that beauty and romance encompassed in a Viennese waltz or something lovely like that. Servants are those trained marvels who always anticipate orders.

They are, and deservedly, the most highly paid of all menials. And the cook on a private yacht is often paid more than the chef in an up-to-date restaurant. In New York, it is said, there are some 20 yachtsmen whose financial outlay each represents more than $100,000 yearly.

Not all emotional bits of human drama are confined to the stage. They pop out in real life now and then. Thirty-one years ago two brilliant and ambitious youths left San Francisco for New York. One was destined to become a great artist and the other an equally great editor.

They secured rooms in the same lodging house and began their conquest of the metropolis. Several weeks after their arrival the artist received his first job—a serial to illustrate. In the throes of creation, his friend called out from the floor below: "May I come up a minute?"

Due solely to his haste to finish his work, the artist replied a bit brusquely: "Not now, see you later." From that moment until a night recently they never spoke to each other again. Each watched the other rise and their paths frequently crossed at social gatherings.

The truth was that out of this tempest in a tea pot arose more of an embarrassment than a dislike. At a dinner to an old friend last week they happened to walk toward each other and impelled by a common impulse clasped hands and smiled in perfect understanding. The editor was Robert H. Davis. The artist was Harrison Fisher.

All likely have had an experience similar to that of Mr. Davis and Mr. Fisher. There was a day when I sailed over a hitching post leap frog fashion while "the only girl" watched from her porch. I landed kerflop in a muddy pool. My closest boyhood friend doubled with laughter. We never spoke again, although we have come face to face twice in faraway corners. There is no enmity whatever. Just mutual embarrassment. How are you, Frank?
